MARKETS UNINTERESTING
SOME SCATTERED PROFIT-TAKING

DUBLIN

The outstanding feature on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday was the continued demand for Irish Government Funds. The 3½ p.c. Fourth National Loan gained 30/- to 94½ and 4 p.c. Conversion rose 10/- to 100, while 4 p.c. Land Bonds jumped to 98½. British Funds also attracted a fair amount of attention, and displayed an upward tendency. 3½ p.c. War Loan advanced ¼ to 99⅝ and 4 p.c. Funding Loan added 1¾ points to 110¼. Elsewhere the tone of markets in general was inclined to be irregular.

Dublin Port and Docks 3¼ p.c. was 1/16 easier at 83¾ and prices in the Banking section showed no change.

Guinness Ord. opened better at 62/-, but in later dealings fell away, to close 9d. down on the day at 60/9. The Pref. stock repeated last price, 12¾. Alliance Gas Ord. lost 3d., to close at 20/6, while Dublin Tram 5 p.c. Deb. repeated 100. Carroll Pref. finished 6d. lower at 21/-, but Cement Deb., Independent News Ord., Millar and Beatty Pref. and I.C.S. Building Society all repeated former levels. Irish Sugar Pref. were a strong market, and rose a further 6d. to 22/-.

British Industrials were neglected and irregular. Courtaulds lost 4½d. to 25/1½ and Anglo Dutch Plantations 1½d. to 14/10½, whilst Boots Pure Drug Ord. gained some ground.

LONDON MONEY MARKET

Bill market rates were unaltered yesterday, the effective rate for three months' commercial draft being 1 1/16 per cent. The full resumption of clearing bank operations in the discount market naturally tended to create easier conditions in the short loan market. Overnight loans were readily obtainable from outside borrowers at 1 per cent.

The silver market continued very quiet. Spot was again fixed at 21 11/16d. per ounce. Forward was fixed at 21 ⅝d. per ounce, thus losing the 1/16d. gained on the previous day.

LONDON

The London Stock Markets had another quiet session yesterday, and, apart from a further fractional advance in Gilt-edged and persistent buying of certain British Rails, notably Southern Prefd., little of interest developed. Nevertheless most groups preserved a fairly cheerful atmosphere, though scattered profit-taking caused some irregularity in the later stages.

In the absence of fresh demand, Industrials were especially sensitive to sales, and many recently prominent issues, such as Tobaccos, Steels, and Rayons, concluded on a somewhat dull note. Movements among the principal mining descriptions also were adverse. Oil shares turned weak in sympathy with "Shells," which gave way as a result of the chairman's warning on the difficulties of making profits in war-time. Tea shares were not materially affected by the rationing decision.

Quiet investment support for Old War Loan again provided a feature in the Gilt-edged market, and at the same time War Loan 3 per cent. moved further ahead, both issues recording final gains of ¼ at 99¼ and 100¼ respectively. Conversion 3½ per cent. proved another favoured issue, and Old Consols showed to advantage with a fresh rise of ¼ at 72¼.

Conditions in the Foreign section were indistinguishable from those which have ruled for some time past, and, with few exceptions, values were unchanged throughout the day. Brazilian Bonds managed to show firmness in places, but Far Eastern and European Loans were completely devoid of interest. Among other Bonds, Egyptian Unified came on offer and dropped a point to 55.

Turnover in British Rails suffered a further reduction, but operators were still in a cheerful mood, and sustained activity in selected issues enabled the whole market to maintain its recent firmness. The greater part of the day's business resulted from steady buying of Southern Prefd., and the stock was finally no less than 5½ up at 47. Other prominent features were Great Western 5 per cent. Pref. and Southern 5 per cent., both issues reaching 66½ with gains of 1½. Foreign Rails gave another dreary performance.

INDUSTRIALS

Dealers experienced a rather quiet session in the Industrial market. The tone on the whole was moderately firm, though price movements became irregular during the afternoon.

General Electrics provided a bright spot on the good showing made by the annual report. The price rose to 71/3 at one time, eventually closing with a net gain on balance of 1/6 at 70/-. Apart from Tube Investments, which finished 2/- higher at 72/-, Iron and Steel shares presented an easier front. B.S.A., John Brown, Clarke Chapman, Colvilles, Hadfields, Pease and Partners, Powell Duffryn, United Steels, Staveleys, Vickers and Richard Thomas Pref., all shed a few pence.

Aircrafts and Motors also turned dull, the only firm feature being Leylands, which strengthened to 2⅛. Breweries continued to receive support, with the exception of Guinness, which fell back 2/3 to 61/3. Ind. Coope rose 2/- to 58/-, Watney Defd. 2/- to 44/-, Benskins 9d. to 47/-, and Mitchells and Butlers 1/- to 57/-. The Tobacco leaders were subject to further realisations. "Imps" closed ⅛ down at 4 5/32, United Souths lost ⅛ at 4¼, "Bats" 1/16 at 3¼, and Carreras "A" 1/16 at 3⅞.

In other directions British Oxygens strengthened to 2 9/16, James Finlay to 40/-, Boots Drug to 36/-, and Murex to 3⅛. On the other hand, Dunlops, Imperial Chemicals, Lever and Unilever, Turner and Newall and Liebigs all lost ground.

MINES

In the absence of fresh buying, small offerings from the Cape caused general dullness in Kaffirs. The dividend-payers suffered chiefly. Cons. Main Reef at 2⅞ were ⅛ lower, and losses of 1/16 were sustained by "Sallies" and "Vogels" at 3 3/16 and 23/32 respectively. Others to fall 1/16 included City Deep, Grootvlei, Robinson Deep and West Springs.

In the Finance Group, Gold Fields declined 1/16 to 1¼, and Anglo-American also weakened, but H.E. Props. further improved 6d. to 8/9. Western Holdings, among the developing mines, reacted to 7/-. Other Gold shares, however, were quietly firm. In West Africans, rises of 6d. and 4½d. were shown by Gold Coast Selection and Marlu respectively.

There was a fresh advance in Tins, though business was still restricted by a shortage of stock. Pahang at 14/6 were 6d. better, while Malayans, S. Malayans and Tronah all closed 1/16 up. Rhodesian Coppers remained firm, with Roans and Selection Trusts both 6d. higher.

OILS AND RUBBERS

The easier tendency displayed by Oil shares on the preceding day became even more pronounced yesterday. Fresh offering on an unwilling market caused prices to recede all round, the losses in some cases being substantial. In the absence of support, business was, naturally, restricted to small proportions.

"Shells," which were again easier at the start, weakened further as the day progressed, and finished with a decline of 1/16 at 1 13/16, thus sustaining a loss of ⅛ in two days. Burmahs were also depressed, and fell 1/16 to 2 1/16, while Anglo-Iranians shed 1/16 to 1 11/16. Most of the leading Trinidad issues were lowered. Leaseholds receded 1/16, Apex 9d., T.P.D. 6d., and United British 3d. In other directions, V.O.C.'s, Anglo-Egyptian "B" and Kerns all declined, while the Preference issues of the leading concerns also gave way.

Rubber shares again attracted a moderate amount of attention, and although demand did not always lead to business, the market preserved a firm undertone, with Patalings, Linggis and Anglo-Malay displaying an upward trend.

13 JUL 1940

POSSESSION OF WORKHOUSE

ACTION BY MINISTER

DEFENDANT GIVES EVIDENCE

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE GAVAN DUFFY.)

THE hearing of the action of the Minister for Local Government and Public Health against Richard J. Kenny, Society street, Ballinasloe, County Galway, claiming possession of Ballinasloe Workhouse; alternatively, a declaration that Mr. Kenny is bound to use the premises solely for the purpose of wool scouring and kindred industries, and damages for alleged breach of conditions of his lease, was continued.

Mr. Kenny denied that he had failed to observe any of the conditions of the lease, or that he had been guilty of any breach of the covenant or damage to the premises.

Mr. H. J. Moloney, K.C., Mr. M. J. Connolly, K.C., and Mr. S. P. Keely (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) appeared for the Minister, and Mr. Kenny conducted his own case.

Mr. R. C. Pratt, accountant, Local Government Department, said that a sum of £89 10s. had been expended by his Department in sending down inspectors to examine the premises in connection with Mr. Kenny's tenancy. The last rent received was on December 11, 1935, in respect of the period until June 1, 1935.

John Stack, Local Government Department Inspector, Galway, said that he visited the workhouse on several occasions between 1936 and 1939. He had never seen anything in the nature of a wool scouring business carried on there.

At the close of the plaintiff's case an application by Mr. Kenny for a direction in his favour on the grounds that he had no case to meet was refused.

Detective-Sergeant John Noonan, Ballinasloe, examined by Mr. Kenny, stated that in July, 1939, during Mr. Kenny's absence in America, he investigated a report that an office in Mr. Kenny's premises had been broken into. Books and documents were strewn about the place and doors were damaged.

DEFENDANT'S EVIDENCE

Mr. Kenny, the defendant, giving evidence, said that the company was formed in 1919, and was styled "Kenny, Murray and Co., Ballinasloe."

"The object of the company," he said, "was to sell wool on the Continent, and under cover of this particular business it was to be used as a cover for getting in arms. It was necessary to have the matter run as a business concern."

It was necessary, he continued, to get the wool scoured, and in selling the wool he found that by getting it scoured he was able to get a better sale for it. About 1932 he approached the Government, and pointed out that there would be a possibility of opening a wool scouring business in this country, and he produced evidence to show that this business had been carried on by him.

He had had plans prepared to make the premises which he had leased suitable for wool scouring, and had got estimates for machinery, and the allegation that he had made no attempt to use the premises for wool scouring was unfounded. He went to eminent firms in Leipzig and Bremen, and had got an estimate for £4,500 for the putting in of a plant. He had purchased wool and had arranged to get in machinery, but a trade pact with Germany allowed only a certain quantity to be exported.

BUSINESS WITH GERMANY

He had been given a licence to export only a certain quantity of wool. It would not have been economic for him to put in the plant that he had contemplated.

Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy—Your case is that the Government, having allowed you to take this place for the purpose of carrying on this business, prevented you from doing so?

Mr. Kenny—Yes; that is my case.

Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy said that he thought that Mr. Moloney was entitled to full discovery of the documents that Mr. Kenny relied on in support of his case.

The further hearing was adjourned until today.

RELEASE FROM CONTRACT

CLAIM AGAINST SOLICITOR

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE GAVAN DUFFY.)

Judgment in default of appearance was given against Sydney Edwin Cooper, solicitor, South Frederick street, Dublin, in favour of James Kearns, Belgrave road, Monkstown, Co. Dublin, who had claimed a declaration that he was released from a contract, dated April 2, 1940, with Mr. Cooper for the purchase of premises at Thorncliffe Park, Dublin, sub-leased for 999 years at annual rents amounting to £63. Mr. Kearns had also claimed for the repayment by Mr. Cooper of £236, which, he said, he had paid as a deposit on the sale, and other relief.

In his statement of claim Mr. Kearns stated that of the purchase price of £945 he paid a deposit of £236 on April 2 last, and the sale was to be completed on May 1 last. He investigated Mr. Cooper's title to the property, and on May 2 last delivered to Mr. Cooper requisitions on title in respect of it. He had, he stated, repeatedly applied to Mr. Cooper for answers to the requisitions, but Mr. Cooper had not replied.

On May 30 last, stated Mr. Kearns, a notice served by his solicitors on Mr. Cooper intimated that, unless answers to the requisitions were received within seven days, action would be taken. Mr. Cooper had not replied to the notice nor completed the sale.

Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy said that he would make an order granting Mr. Kearns release from the contract, and directing repayment by Mr. Cooper of the £236 deposit, payment of £20 for damages for breach of contract, and £30 for the costs of investigating the title to the premises. He also allowed Mr. Kearns the costs of the action.

Mr. Ashley Powell (instructed by Messrs. D. D. MacDonald and Co.) appeared for Mr. Kearns.

CIRCUIT (CRIMINAL) COURT

ALLEGED OMISSION FROM CASH BOOK

ACCUSED MAN PLEADS "NOT GUILTY"

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON AND A JURY.)

Daniel Carroll, of Kilworth road, North Crumlin, pleaded "not guilty" to charges of omitting, or concurring in omitting, in a cash book an item of £15; stealing £15; stealing £60 7s. 6d., and mutilating a cash book, all the property of his employers, Messrs. Edward Lee and Co., 6 and 7 Upper Abbey street, Dublin.

Evidence in support of the charges was then given.

Mr. P. J. McEnery, K.C. (for the prosecution) said that he had been instructed by the Attorney-General to enter a nolle prosequi in respect of the charge relating to the £60 7s. 6d.

Judge Shannon said that he agreed with that course.

Thomas Hennessey, director and manager of the Abbey Street Branch, described finding the premises in disorder.

Cross-examined, he said that he had always found Carroll's work satisfactory and had no complaints about him.

The case for the prosecution had not concluded when the Court rose until 11 a.m. to-day.

SEEKING NEXT-OF-KIN

AN order was made directing an inquiry to ascertain the next-of-kin of John Leary, butcher's porter, late of 20 Cole's lane, Dublin, who died at the age of 83 on April 22, 1939, leaving assets valued at £1,600 odd.

Mr. Ignatius J. Kelly (instructed by Messrs. Gore and Grimes), who applied for the order on behalf of Mrs. Esther Mary Ryan, 34 Percy street, Liverpool, a niece of the late John Leary, said that the late John Leary had been survived by his widow, Annie. He left no children nor grandchildren. The widow was one of the next-of-kin, Mrs. Ryan was another, and the third was Mr. Leary's sister, Maria, who, when last heard of, had resided in Liverpool, but who could not now be found.

Mrs. Annie Leary died, leaving her estate, except for a small charitable legacy, to her brother, Patrick Gately, who himself died on February 21 last, and to whose estate administration had been raised by his widow, Mrs. Teresa Gately, who was the defendant in the present administration suit.

The present position was, continued Mr. Kelly, that there was nobody actually representing the estate of Mrs. Annie Leary, but the person who would be entitled to Mrs. Leary's estate was Mrs. Gately.

SUCCESSION OF DEATHS

Mr. Frank FitzGibbon, K.C., who, with Mr. T. V. Davy (instructed by Mr. James Fagan), appeared for Mrs. Teresa Gately, 6 Fitzgibbon street, Dublin, said that it would be necessary to have someone to represent the estate of Mrs. Annie Leary, in order to have the administration suit properly constituted. There had been a succession of deaths, one soon after another. John Leary died on April 22, 1939, and a grant of administration to his estate had been taken out by his widow on May 25, 1939. She proceeded to administer the estate, and died on January 7 of this year. The assets all had been collected. The house, 20 Cole's lane, where Mrs. Annie Leary had carried on an old clothes shop, had been purchased by Mr. Leary for £100, but had been valued for estate duty purposes at £250. The household goods, on sale, realised £2.

The greater part of the household goods had, said Mr. FitzGibbon, been given away to a man in consideration of his taking them away and cleaning the house. On January 22 probate of Annie's will was taken out by Patrick Gately. Patrick Gately was entitled under the will of Annie to all Annie's estate, which consisted exclusively of what she had got from her husband's estate, and Mrs. Gately was now entitled to half of that estate, plus £500.

RESIDED IN ENGLAND

Patrick Gately, having taken out probate to Mrs. Annie Leary, died on February 21st last, leaving his widow, the defendant in the present proceedings, and a daughter surviving. In that state of affairs Mrs Ryan applied for a grant of administration to the estate of John Leary. She was entitled to take out a grant, but she resided in England, and Mrs. Gately entered a caveat against it for the purpose of satisfying herself that adequate security would be given for the administration of the estate, half of which, plus £500, was the defendant's.

Mr. Kelly said that his client was willing to give the security required.

Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy appointed Mrs. Teresa Gately to represent the estate of the late Mrs. Annie Leary.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

THEFT BY MEANS OF TRICK ALLEGED

ACCUSED MAN REMANDED

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

Albert D. Pelan, Lonsdale street, Belfast, a 66 years old retired publican and builder, was again before the Court on the charge of having obtained £250 from Miss Janeta Beauchamp, Ballycumber, Offaly, by means of false pretences, and with stealing money by means of a trick from Miss Beauchamp at the College Green Branch of the Ulster Bank; also with having £226 illegally in his possession.

Pelan was remanded until next Friday.

Miss Beauchamp again went into the box and said that she took £250 from the Bank of Ireland for the purpose of buying a farm and getting married to Pelan.

Thomas N. Tonge, 19 Willfield road, Dublin, cashier, employed by the Bank of Ireland, Lower O'Connell street, Dublin, said that on June 14th Pelan presented a cheque for £190 payable to self. He had lodged £200 in the bank on June 11th. Other cheques were drawn, leaving a balance of £4 6s. 6d.

PRISON FOR "SHORT SPIN"

A sentence of a month's imprisonment for using a motor car without permission of the owner and for driving without being covered by an insurance policy was imposed on John Evans, "Rath," Swords, Co. Dublin. Evans was a chauffeur and houseman employed by Mrs. E. Brambell, Belgrave square, Monkstown, Co. Dublin, who gave Evans a good character, except for the taking of the car.

Evans, who was never in trouble before, said that he did not think there was any harm in taking the car for "a short spin."

MILK DEFICIENT IN FATS

(BEFORE MR. LENNON.)

Charles Byrne, Parnell street, Dublin, was fined £4 for selling milk deficient in the legal percentage of fats.

Mr. H. H. Bonass, solicitor, prosecuted.

ATTEMPT TO OBTAIN MONEY

ACCUSED MEN REMANDED

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

Two unemployed men were charged with attempting to obtain money from the Marquis MacSwiney, and Sister Monica, of St. Vincent's Hospital, St. Stephen's Green, Dublin. They were John Byrne (38), Golden lane, Dublin, and William Bullon (38), Waterpark, Kimmage. It was stated that on July 8th, at Upper Fitzwilliam street, they attempted to obtain from Marquis MacSwiney £1 14s. 6d. by falsely pretending that a child of one of them had died, and that the Rev. Father Hooke, C.C., Haddington road, would be responsible for the repayment of the money, and also with having attempted to obtain from the Rev. Sister Monica £1 14s. by falsely representing that they were Dublin Corporation employés in need of money, and stating that Mr. Frank Duff, of the Morning Star Hostel, would be responsible for the repayment of the money.

When arrested by Detective Officer Brady, the accused men said that they were only looking for work. Later they said that they would plead guilty.

Byrne and Bullon were remanded on bail.

SEVEN YEARS' PENAL SERVITUDE

THREATENED GUARD WITH REVOLVER

For threatening a Civic Guard with a revolver in Lower Glanmire road, Cork, at 3 a.m. on the morning of June 1st, Francis Kerrigan, Cahilville, Old Youghal road, Cork, was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude by the Special Criminal Court at Collins Barracks yesterday.

Kerrigan was noticed acting in a suspicious manner, and when a Civic Guard was bringing him to the police station he bolted. Followed by the Guard, who closed on him, Kerrigan drew a revolver and said: "If you come I will get you." The accused man made his escape, but was arrested later and identified at a parade.

The defendant, who refused to recognise the Court, was found guilty also of possession of a revolver.

IRISH WEDDINGS

MR. W. P. GUARD AND MISS E. J. WALLACE

The marriage took place in Monkstown Church, Co. Dublin, yesterday of Mr. Wilson Perrott Guard, son of the late Mr. Wesley Guard and Mrs. Guard, Waterloo road, Dublin, to Miss E. J. Wallace, daughter of the late Mr. H. Elleslie Wallace and Mrs. Wallace.

The Service was conducted by the Rev. H. Forde, assisted by the Rev. B. Kennedy.

The bride, who wore an ivory satin gown cut on simple lines, was given away by her uncle, Mr. Carroll. Her French lace veil was arranged over a wreath of orange blossom, and she carried a bouquet of cream roses.

There were four bridesmaids—Miss P. Wilkins, Miss H. McCormick, Miss N. Matheson and Miss D. Bradfield—who wore gowns of white moire and headdresses of white tulle, with velvet trimmings. They carried bouquets of dark red roses. The page was Master Robert Watson, nephew of the bride.

Mr. E. Goodbody acted as best man, and the groomsmen were Messrs. H. Browne, R. Wilkins and H. Shepherd.

After the ceremony a reception was held at Greenville, Blackrock, by the bride's mother.

MR. W. P. FAY AND MISS L. CONOLLY

Mr. William P. Fay, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Fay, St. Michael's, Dalkey, was married to Miss Lilian Conolly, daughter of the late Mr. Thomas Conolly and Mrs. Conolly, of Oaklands, Ballsbridge, in the Star of the Sea Church, Sandymount, yesterday.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Austin, C.P.

The bride wore a gown of parchment satin moire cut on princess lines; her veil of old Brussels lace was arranged over orange blossom. She was given away by her brother, Mr. Thomas Conolly.

There was one bridesmaid, Miss Sheila Conolly, who wore a turquoise blue georgette gown. The attendants were Miss E. McGilligan, Miss B. Duggan and Master K. McGilligan.

Mr. E. J. O'Brien acted as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at Oaklands, Ballsbridge, by the bride's mother. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Fay left for a motor tour in the South and West of Ireland, the latter wearing a navy braided suit, with navy camel hair coat and silver fox cape.

Two women who appeared in the Belfast Summons Court yesterday in connection with an alleged assault were told by Mr. J. C. Austin, R.M., that it was the duty of everyone at present to help one another. "If the war hit either of your houses, I hope the one would take the other in," said Mr. Austin. "That is the feeling we want in our homes to-day." The women gave an undertaking to live at peace with each other.

MOTOR NOTES

CARAVAN CLUB

Formation of an Irish Centre Contemplated

By HAROLD C. BROWN

AN effort is being made to join the motor caravanists of Eire into an organisation that will help them in the enjoyment of their pastime. I never have spent a holiday in a motor caravan, but, judging by the enthusiasm of James Irvine, the Leinster Motor Club chairman, it has features that surpass all other holiday attractions, and, apparently, when one starts to motor caravan the fascination of the game prevents one from abandoning it.

A circular letter has been sent to caravan owners suggesting the formation of an Irish Centre of the Caravan Club, and when the preliminary formalities have been completed a meeting will be called to form the Centre and elect officials. The Caravan Club offers many services to its members—the collection and circulation of information about sites, including details about the nature of the ground, the distance of shops, the charges, water supplies, and other items of importance to the caravanner; advice about touring, legal difficulties and insurance; free copies of various publications; and rallies, meets and winter events in areas where there are centres.

Each member is supplied with a car badge, a caravan pennant and a buttonhole badge or brooch. The entrance fee is 10s. 6d., and during the war the annual subscription is 10s. Further information may be obtained from the Irish Area Officer, Caravan Club, 47a Fleet street, Dublin.

Period Costumes

NOT for one moment would I criticise the Veteran Car Run parties who place a very wide interpretation upon the words "period costume." One group had planned to go as the Dionne quintuplets, which would have been travelling very far from period costume; but, as long as the thing does not become general, such circus efforts add to the gaiety of the run, and the efforts of the humorists are really appreciated.

It is wrong, however, that prizes, or marks, for period costumes should be awarded for anything else. What is wanted is attire that is appropriate to the period of the car. "A" should not be placed higher than "B" just because "A's" suit has a louder check.

I liked George Cooke's entourage. His wife was very charmingly dressed as a woman of 1911-12, and the two children carried in the car had delightful, thoughtful touches—the little boy's pre-Great War sailor suit and the little girl's lace in the old-fashioned places, for example. George's coat, however, was rather in the Max Miller style.

The women passengers as a whole were excellent. They are more sensible than men in their choice of period clothing, and they get very attractive effects with those big hats and generous veils. As far as pictures of the period reveal masculine styles, big moustaches were fashionable, but I am sure that a very small number of them was bright red in colour!

One bit from the programme deserves to be quoted. It concerns the Wardell-O'Clery 1900 Arrol Johnston, which is believed to have been one of the first cars in Scotland. It was brought to Ireland in 1924, and, the story goes, "it was towed from the docks, where it was an object of wonder. A bystander inquired what it was, was told it was a field gun, and went away satisfied."

Congratulations to Matt McQuaid, who, after two years of cruel luck, including a fire, reached the finish in his Darracq.

Water in Petrol

SCIENTISTS researching into the problems of condensation have discovered that a great deal of the water is produced in the running of a motor car engine. In a normal month's motoring a car owner may have "manufactured" enough water to fill a bath. Fortunately for him, all but the smallest trace of the water is eliminated through the exhaust. Nevertheless minute quantities of water remain in the engine after starting, and they may do considerable damage if they become mixed with inferior lubricating oil in the sump.

It is in that way that sludge is formed, and when oil becomes thickened it readily carries in suspension minute particles of metal grit or carbon collected in the crankcase which enter the bearings and rubbing surfaces, with consequent serious wear. What is, perhaps, worse, is that the oil filters become choked, and the oil return holes and piston rings become clogged.

The most efficient oil should offer protection against sludge formation, and it should contain a soluble metallic inhibitor which aids in the protection of the interior of the engine from corrosion—the true cause of most cylinder and piston wear.

Troubles arising from condensation in another way are prevalent during the winter months. When a car is parked or garaged, and cools after being run for some time, the cold air coming into contact with the cooling interior of the cylinders causes a certain amount of moisture to condense. Water produced in this way is equally liable to deteriorate poor oils. It is important, therefore, that specification for oil should include protection against sludge, or gum formation, with its accompanying serious evils to the engine.

Delgany Meet

THE significance of "the twelfth" depends upon one's interests. To the majority it means the 12th of August, and the start of grouse shooting. To others it means the 12th of July, and certain celebrations on that date. To many members of the motor trade it means the 12th of July all right, but the celebration in their case is the Dunlop Cup Delgany meeting of the Irish Motor Cycle and Allied Trades' Golfing Association. This year the dates of the meeting are 11th and 12th July—that is, on Thursday and Friday of this week.

STAMPS OF THE WEEK

The Mint Stamp Company, 74 Grafton street, Dublin, have sent us the following new stamps for illustration:—

EGYPT, 1940—Child Welfare. Portrait of Princess Ferial. 5m.+5m. Red Brown (Price, 6d. each.)

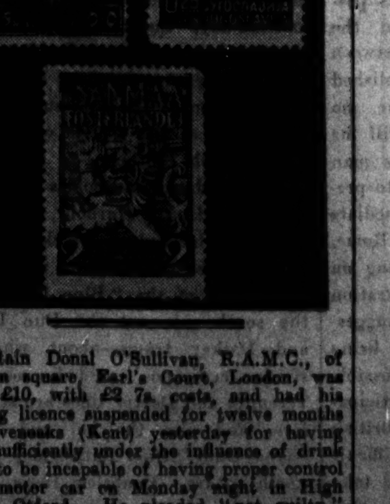
JUGO SLAVIA, 1940—King Peter. 25d., Grey Black; 50d., Orange; 1d., Green; 1.50d., Carmine. (Set of 4. Price, 10d.)



Captain Donal O'Sullivan, R.A.M.C., of Nevern square, Earl's Court, London, was fined £10, with £2 7s. costs, and had his driving licence suspended for twelve months at Sevenoaks (Kent) yesterday for having been sufficiently under the influence of drink so as to be incapable of having proper control of a motor car on Monday night in High street, Otford. He pleaded "not guilty," and denied that he was hopelessly and helplessly drunk.

Now For YOUR HOLIDAYS

More than ever, in these troubled times, your annual holiday is a vital necessity. For your health's sake you need a break from everyday toil, a change from everyday surroundings. Ensure an enjoyable holiday by planning it NOW. You will find that Ireland Offers a surprising variety of resorts, and splendid value in health, sport, comfort, and holiday happiness. Golf and other sports for the grown ups; safe bathing beaches for the children, pleasant rambles and excursions, various amusements and pastimes for holiday-makers of all categories. Or if yours must be an angling holiday your opportunities are simply unlimited, your enjoyment assured.

EAST COAST

Ireland's east coast is the sunniest and driest region North and South of Dublin, within reach of the city's gaiety and entertainment, are some of Ireland's most favoured resorts.

Northward lies the golden chain of sandy beaches from Dublin Bay past Meath to Carlingford Lough in Louth. Behind this coast stretch the historic Boyne Valley and the diversified landscapes of Cavan, Monaghan and the Westmeath lakelands. Southward sweeps the other shore of Dublin Bay past Dun Laoghaire to Killiney, linking up with superbly situated Bray and the silver strands, along the coast of Wicklow and Wexford to Rosslare. Beyond the hills lie the green plains of Kildare, historic Laoighis, and the valleys of the Slaney, Barrow, and the Nore in County Kilkenny.

SOUTH COAST

Fronting the Atlantic Ocean, enjoying a mild, genial climate, the South Coast of Ireland makes an immediate and potent appeal. Along that beautiful coast from Waterford to Cork and Kerry, there are gay, crowded resorts, secluded strands and coves, sheltered places where the myrtle and the oleander freely blossom.

As a change from coastal holidays you can explore the lovely valleys of the Suir and Blackwater, the golden vales of Limerick and Tipperary, the mountain recesses of Cork and Kerry, and, of course, the Lakes of Killarney. Everywhere there is beauty and interest, a fine variety of contour and colour which packs every excursion with thrills.

WEST COAST

Clare, Galway, Connemara, Mayo, Sligo, Leitrim, Donegal—these spell grandeur, the natural grandeur of the western coast, which experienced travellers declare to be unrivalled in Europe. Rugged promontories, towering cliffs, island-studded bays, golden beaches backed by prodigious mountains—these combine to make the extraordinary western scene. Add to this the countless lakes and rivers, most of them renowned for salmon, sea and brown trout.

For a "different" kind of holiday visit colourful Connemara and Donegal, storehouses of Ireland's language, traditions and culture; rejuvenate in the seasides and spas of Clare; enjoy the glories of Mayo's bays, lakes and mountains; the glamour of Achill Island; the unbelievable beauties of Sligo and Leitrim, and the storied Shannon country of Offaly, Longford and Roscommon.

THE WORD WE KEEP AT HOME

THERE'S one word we have in Irish which is like the Bird of Paradise—it dies if it leaves its native land. That word is Flaitheamhlach—Prince-like—generous to a fault. Either the inhabitants of other lands can't get their tongues round it or their hospitality is on a less ambitious scale.

It is the pride of an Irishman to lavish on his guest the best he can command in entertainment, food and drink. For instance, in Ireland gin and lime means gin and Rose's Lime Juice. For Rose's is the pure juice of the lime and nothing else. And even if the guest does not choose gin and lime for a social evening—a glass of straight Rose's to wind up with frees the morrow from what the whole world knows as a hangover.

The quantity of butter held on 30th ultimo in all public cold stores in Eire and at the premises of manufacturers of creamery and factory butter and principle merchants (not including day-to-day stocks in the hands of shopkeepers), was 30,225 cwt., compared with 28,491 cwt. on June 15, 1940.

In the period from the 16th to 30th June the production of creamery butter was approximately 52,803 cwt., and the quantity stated to have been exported was 36,154 cwt. Public cold stores received 9,519 cwt., and the withdrawals amounted to 10,181 cwt., leaving a net movement of 662 cwt. of creamery butter out of public cold stores.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1940.

Decisions at Vichy

Fateful decisions were taken at Vichy yesterday when the French Chamber and Senate met separately to discuss the problem of a new Constitution for the Republic. The Chamber, which sat under the presidency of Monsieur Herriot, the famous Mayor of Lyons, adopted by a majority of 395 votes to three a resolution stating that "there is occasion for a revision of the Constitution." The Senate adopted an identical resolution by a majority of 225 votes to one; and both Houses sitting together as a National Assembly, will be asked to ratify the motion to-day. Telegraphic communication with Vichy at the moment is not altogether satisfactory, and some of the rumours that are being circulated must be accepted with reserve; but it seems that Monsieur Paul Reynaud, the former French Premier, was in attendance, and, therefore, it is to be presumed that he has recovered from the serious accident with which he met near Bordeaux about a fortnight ago. Under the terms of the resolution which is likely to be passed by the National Assembly to-day extensive powers will be vested in the person of Marshal Pétain. He will have authority to draft a new Constitution, which, when it is finished, will be ratified by the National Assembly; but it is expected that the aged Premier will delegate his powers—or most of them—to a committee of three, consisting of Monsieur Pierre Laval, Monsieur Marquet, and General Weygand. Monsieur Laval already has been at work for some time on the heads of a new Constitution, designed primarily to strengthen the Executive at the expense of the Legislature. As we have said already, reports from Vichy are not wholly satisfactory, and there have been contradictory statements regardng the nature of the proposed changes; but there seems to be small doubt that the new Constitution will be based on corporative principles, and that there will be an end to the old system of geographical democracy. The slogan which has rung through French history since the Revolution—"Liberty, Equality, Fraternity"—the slogan in which human hopes have been centred for a century and a half—will be replaced by a new watchword—"Labour, the Family, the Fatherland." The precise significance of the change remains to be seen; but it is fairly safe to predict that the new French Constitution will sound the death-knell of that system of government to which Frenchmen of all parties have clung so obstinately for so many years. Marshal Pétain and his colleagues have given it to be understood that any changes that may be made will be within the framework of the Republic, as it has existed since the days of the Franco-Prussian War. Monsieur Pomaret, Minister of Labour, has hinted that France's economic policy will be based on a mainly agricultural, rather than on an industrial, foundation. The military tradition which has played such an important part in the French scheme of things since Napoleon's times, probably will be set aside; and the new France, like the Germany of the Weimar Constitution, will start its career as an unarmed State.

It is almost impossible at the moment to form an estimate of the actual relations between France and Great Britain. There has been much unnecessary recrimination on both sides. After the collapse of the French Army and Marshal Pétain's painful decision to sue for an armistice, it was only natural that tempers should be frayed in Bordeaux as well as in London, and that, in the heat of the moment, things should be said which would not have been said in cold blood. On the other hand, the attack on the French warships in Mers-el-Kebir by the British fleet undoubtedly has done a grave disservice to the cause of Franco-British friendship; and, while it may be argued that the British naval authorities had no reasonable alternative, no Frenchman can be blamed if he feels resentment, and even anger, against his former allies. The French Embassy in London has been withdrawn formally. Monsieur Cambon, a kinsman of the famous brothers who played such a vital part in French diplomacy before the last war, has resigned from the post of Chargé d'Affaires, and apparently proposes to remain in England. All French citizens in the United Kingdom will be treated as "non-enemy aliens"; but the position vis-à-vis their own Government of those Frenchmen not only in Great Britain, but in certain parts of the French Empire, who have decided to continue the fight again is obscure. General de Gaulle, whose broadcast on Monday night indicated clearly that he did not approve of the shelling of the Oran fleet, is continuing his efforts to rally all available French citizens to his standard, mainly on the ground that Marshal Pétain and his colleagues no longer are free agents, but are acting under duress. Monsieur Laval has stated, or is reported to have stated, that the new France must be as free as possible from British influence, and the rupture of diplomatic relations between Vichy and London is an accomplished fact. With the progress of time, no doubt, Franco-British relations will be clarified; but he would be a brave man who would venture at the moment to predict the course of events in the immediate future. According to reports from Rome, Italian commentators are speculating on the possibility of a French declaration of war upon Great Britain. The suggestion is that France is anxious to bring the war to an end at the earliest possible moment, and that her active participation in the campaign against the British might serve that purpose. It is difficult to believe, however, that events will take such a revolutionary turn, even in this war of hourly surprises. Public opinion in France may be aggrieved by the drastic action of the British Fleet in the Mediterranean; but, apart from any other consideration, the French people have had enough of war, and hardly are likely in any circumstances to take up arms against their former friends. While the continent is buzzing with rumours and the French are passing through a period of agonised doubt, Great Britain is preparing to withstand a long siege. The latest figures show that her daily war expenditure is in the region of £9,500,000; and the real strain of the struggle has not yet made itself felt.

Fill the Pantry

Ireland has displayed, in some respects, a dangerous tendency to disregard the warnings of its leaders, but we hope that last night's broadcast by the Minister for Supplies will not fall upon unlistening ears. Recently Mr. Lemass urged the retailer shop-keepers of the twenty-six counties to lay in all stocks that they could afford, and simultaneously he urged the public to buy reserve supplies to the best of their ability. Upon the whole, as he admitted last night, this advice has been followed; yet it has not been followed to the necessary extent. The Minister does not mince his words. "It is true, he says, > that we have proclaimed our neutrality and made known our determination to defend it to the full limit of our man-power, but these declarations will not make us immune from attack. Invasion will be resisted, and, apart from our own efforts, may produce counter-invasion, with the result that on our territory the next great battle of the war may be fought. If that should happen, it is inevitable that many parts of the country may be isolated for long periods, and it is, therefore, necessary that in every area the supplies of essential foodstuffs on the spot should be sufficient to meet the needs of the local population, enlarged possibly by refugees from other areas.

There is no danger of a shortage of essential supplies. Of that fact we have the assurance of Mr. Lemass and other Ministers. The danger here, as in other countries, is that communications will be disturbed so seriously, in the event of an invasion, that the system of distribution will break down—in other words, that it will not be possible to convey food and other necessaries from where they are to where they are needed. To take an example, there might be enough supplies in Dublin to last the entire twenty-six counties, without shortage, for two months; but it is conceivable that an invading force might contrive to occupy so much territory—or disturb communications so seriously—between Dublin and, say, Cork, that Cork would be unable to obtain the requirements of its 70,000 citizens. That is an imaginary example, which applies, perhaps, better to other parts of the country, but it serves to illustrate the point of Mr. Lemass's advice. Cork's duty, in the circumstances, is to make itself independent of supplies from Dublin—or from anywhere else—and the Minister has recommended the best way to such self-sufficiency. Let the shops buy, and let the people buy from them, to the full depth of their pockets. The poor, who cannot afford to follow his advice to any substantial extent, are comforted with the assurance that, in any event, they will suffer no acute discomfort—"the Government is making administrative arrangements to ensure that nobody need go without the necessaries of life because of lack of purchasing power." Thousands of families, on the other hand, can lay in a few additional pounds of tea, some more stones of flour, increased supplies of those commodities which every capable housewife knows to be essentials of life. It is not a task that can be postponed until next month or next week; within the limits of the purse it ought to be done at once. Judicious purchasing of essential supplies, as the Minister has told the people of Ireland, is "in the national interest, and in your own personal interest as well."

Dublin's Transport

Dubliners have a reputation for extreme conservatism. They are slow to change their ways, cautious of the unknown, reluctant to leave the old and proven paths which their fathers trod before them. Yet, once they have made up their minds that a change really is desirable, they can move with quite incredible swiftness from the old way to the new. On Monday at the Dublin Rotary Club Mr. Leslie A. Luke, Public Relations Officer of the Tramway Company, described the "transport revolution" which has taken place in Dublin within the last two years. Up to that time, although every other city of its size in Europe had decided against electric street trams as being unsuitable in modern traffic conditions, and in the matter of speed a mode of travel only slightly better than the old horse cars which preceded them, Dublin clung affectionately to its old-fashioned trams, which thundered through the streets at a good walking pace, caused traffic jams about every hundred yards in the centre of the city, and generally made the most incredible nuisances of themselves. The public affection for the dear old things, however, changed at last to exasperation, and to-day, though the "revolution" began only two years ago, virtually every tram has been replaced by a new double-deck omnibus. The sole survivor on the north side of the city is on the Howth route, which continues to impede traffic at several dangerous points between Earl street and Howth Harbour, and occupies, with its banked-up track, about six valuable feet of the narrow roadway along the border of the "Blue Lagoon." On the south side are the Dun Laoghaire and Dalkey trams—about which very similar criticisms could be made. The Terenure and Dartry lines are still to the fore, and also the old and honoured "cross-tram" from Ballsbridge to Kenilworth square. Doubtless these, too, will disappear in time and the city will be free at last to devise some form of traffic regulations and control which will not be defeated instantly by the intractable trams. With these obstructions gone, College Green will become a circus of smoothly flowing, uninterrupted streams of traffic. Dawson street and the Nassau street junction, with the aid of a few traffic lights, may cease to be a nightmare for every motorist, and the whole traffic system in the city will be able to emerge from chaos into some form of order. There are at present 382 omnibuses operating in the city, and though many people felt at the beginning that omnibuses would not be so "safe" as the trams, we may congratulate the Tramway Company that out of 7,000,000 passengers carried over 10,000,000 miles in the first six months of this year, only eighteen people were involved in accidents of any kind; and at one holiday period of last year two million passengers were carried in three days without a single mishap. Mechanical breakdown, too, has been reduced to something like one in 72,000 miles. It is a record of public service of which any transport company can be proud.

"DANDY DICK," BY PINERO

It was a happy thought of the Longford Productions to give us as the concluding play of a most successful season this brilliant farce of other days; to give us a grand burst of laughter at the close, and that, too, with a play of quality.

This is one of the plays in Pinero's earlier and lighter manner, with which he established himself as a master dramatist of his day. Skilful play-writing mingles here with delightful humour at work upon the farce of character rather than that of situation.

"Dandy Dick" is richly satisfying; the farcical situation can weary by very dint of its most skilful contrivance; it is character well conceived that never fails. A deft management of the incongruous and dialogue which does not fade, but rather freshens with the years; these between them make "Dandy Dick" a wholly delightful entertainment.

We are presented with the Dean of St. Marvell's, who begins to do for the moment what a real person would never do. In amusing difficulties for money he suddenly discovers that money can be made, perhaps, not too easily, by betting upon horses. He commissions his butler to back a horse for him. He makes a bolus for it in his anxiety that it shall run well, and while in the act of administering it he is arrested on suspicion of trying to interfere with a starter on the eve of a race. That is the only situation in the play, and the dramatist does not too closely concentrate on it. He develops it only as far as it is necessary to bring out the comic reality of the Dean. He has prepared all the assistance that he needs in the other characters, who are all so life-like, in moments which but for them might all be quite unreal: Blore, the butler; the Dean's daughters, Salome and Sheba; Georgiana Tidman, the Dean's sister; Sir Tristram Mardon, Bart.; the two Hussar officers, and Hannah Topping, formerly in service at the Deanery. Each of these has a really comic individuality, and all make fine parts for those who played them.

We had some of the gusto of the playing of other days from Hamlyn Benson as the Dean, Michael Ripper as the butler, Jean Anderson as Mrs. Tidman, Blake Gifford as the baronet with the powerful laugh, and Nora O'Mahony as Hannah Topping. And all of them, with the other players in the cast, seemed to find as much enjoyment in the play as did the audience.

Gerald Pringle, who has done such fine work as producer all through the season, with the assistance of Carl Bonn for his settings and costumes, did not make the usual mistake of those who produce Victorian plays only to burlesque them. We were given "Dandy Dick" almost as we might have seen it in the moment of its first production, and the verdict in its favour was just as unanimous as then.

LONDON LETTER

U.S. OUTPOST

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
TUESDAY NIGHT.

THE staff of the French Embassy at Albert Gate were this morning busy disposing of important papers prior to their departure for France. Many private papers will be taken to France, but others are being burned, and smoke was pouring from one of the chimneys from an early hour. One of the secretaries of the Embassy said that it would be several days before plans for a return to France were completed, and up to the present no arrangement had been made for another country to take over the affairs of the Embassy.

France's New Rulers

General Weygand, with M. Laval and M. Marquet, became the real rulers of France to-day, and it is expected that the General will call to his aid Colonel de la Roque, the former head of the Croix de Feu, long a personal friend, whose political views he shares. In times past the General would visit the headquarters of the organisation and lecture to the young members. The new rulers intend to regenerate France by a programme of national work and discipline.

French Aliens

The British Government has decided that the only French men and women who will be excluded from the restrictions applying to aliens will be those able to satisfy the authorities that they are anxious to support the British cause. There are eleven thousand French people living in the country, and only a few weeks ago these were exempted from all restrictions. A number of French people made application for exemption to-day, and full consideration of all their cases will take some time, but each will be reviewed on its merits. At the moment all French nationals are in the same category as other aliens who are well disposed to Britain.

U.S. Outpost

United States citizens remaining in Britain instead of returning home have formed an outpost of the Allan White Committee in the United States to defend America by aiding the Allies. Two hundred Americans have joined the movement, and a meeting is to be held on Friday evening to consider what action can be taken. Miss Mary Borden will be in the chair. The outpost wishes to do nothing that will embarrass Mr. Kennedy, the United States Ambassador, and it may content itself for the moment by sending to the State's information for the guidance of American opinion as a counter-blow to foreign propaganda.

English Tweeds

The British Pavilion at the New York World's Fair is to be supplied with fashions in woollen materials for next spring, sent out specially for exhibition. Similar woollen materials sent to the Fair last spring were responsible for so much interest that it was decided to despatch another collection this year. The fabrics range from husky tweeds to fine dress-weight wools, and are based on four colour groups—blue reds, blue greens, biscuit tans and red browns. One tweed seems to have been darned with a number of coloured wools, while another has a soft jersey-like texture. Bright colours are popular, and aquamarine coloured tweeds have blue diamond-shaped checks in deep crimson. Altogether, nearly fifty different materials and designs are being sent out, together with models illustrating the way in which they can be used.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

The Yeoman Signaller

I heard a hitherto unrecorded story of simple heroism from a friend of mine, who was on board the Polish destroyer Grom when she was bombed and sunk off Narvik some little time ago. My friend himself was in the water for a couple of hours before he was picked up, and has a pretty poor opinion of the North Sea as a source of beverage.

After the ship had been bombed and was sinking fairly rapidly, a yeoman signaller, who apparently was a Devonian, was trapped in a kind of office, in which a British liaison officer named Dennis had been working on some code books and the like. Commander Dennis and my friend were nearby when the signaller suddenly put his head through a port-hole and said: "Excuse me, sir; have you the keys of the safe?"

The officer was flummoxed at this cool request at a moment when the destroyer was going down at a rate of knots; but when the signaller explained that he would like to lock up all the books and papers in the office lest they might float away and get into improper hands, he handed the keys to his subordinate. Some minutes afterwards the head reappeared, and with a quiet "Thank you, sir; here you are," the keys were returned.

"Mike"

All this time the yeoman signaller knew that he was trapped, and that his only chance of eventual escape was through the port hole; but he disappeared again for some minutes, and finally shouted up to Commander Dennis. "By the way, sir, what shall I do with Mike. Shall I throw him into the sea, or will you look after him?"

"Mike" was Commander Dennis's pet dog, who, I am glad to say, was rescued by his master, and when last seen was chewing up a piece of the carpet in a Scottish hotel none the worse for his sojourn in the North Sea.

I also am glad to be able to record the rescue of the yeoman signaller, who after much difficulty was pulled through the port hole, minus portions of his shoulders and hips, just before the destroyer went to the bottom. If ever a man deserved a decoration it was that yeoman from Devonshire; but he did not get it.

It's a way they have. . . . Incidentally, I understand that the officer in question is not unknown in Baltinglass!

Addendum

By the way, my friend told me something that gave me real pleasure.

The early conquest of the Polish Army—which, in the light of later events was not so very early after all—has prevented the payment of due tribute to the Polish fighting men.

The Grom was a Polish warship, with a predominantly Polish crew, and my informant says that officers and men alike behaved splendidly when their ship was attacked. There was no panic. Discipline was as good as it would have been on a British or German vessel, and the British sailors who were on board had nothing but the highest praise for their Polish comrades.

From all accounts, those who were engaged in the Narvik affair had a thoroughly unpleasant time. According to my friend, who speaks with authority, and not as a scribe, one mouthful of oil floating on the surface of the sea keeps the victim occupied for twenty-four hours. Two mouthfuls last you for a week; if you get a third your lungs cease to function, and it is just too bad for the next-of-kin!

Then and Now

A colleague who has been engaged on some research tells me his work recently caused him to read the debates on the last war in the House of Commons in 1916, and he was struck by the similarity of the phraseology of statesmen then and now.

For example, a heading to a report of the debate on the adjournment for the recess (August 23, 1916) read: "Victory Certain. But Not an Early Victory."

Mr. Churchill (not, at that time, a member of the Government) was quoted as remarking: "The diminution of German reserves . . . constitutes the secure foundation on which we might build our hopes of ultimate success." And, again: "Nothing will dishearten Germany more than the knowledge that the people of the country have organised their national life for the one supreme business of the war."

Mr. Lloyd George, replying to the debate, commented: ". . . . it is necessary to get all the support that the country and Dominions can give."

Any of these remarks—and many more examples may be found in the debate quoted—might have been made in the House of Commons within recent weeks. Despite the many "cracks" about Mr. Churchill's political inconsistencies in the past, there is no doubt that he is consistent in his war-time speeches.

"Wrong-Way" Corrigan

I hear that Douglas Corrigan, the young Irish-American who created a sensation two years ago by landing at a County Dublin aerodrome after making a trans-Atlantic flight "by a mistake," has just announced that there will be no more long-distance or "wrong-way" flights for him. His announcement was made following the arrival of a new responsibility in the Corrigan family—a baby son.

Corrigan, who was fêted more than any man since Lindbergh made his solo flight from New York to Paris in 1927, made a film when he returned to America from Ireland. They called it "The Flying Irishman," and it was not a good film—Corrigan was a good pilot, but a poor actor.

Later he settled down to work in the aviation industry in Los Angeles, and married a school teacher from his native city—Miss Elizabeth Marvin, of San Antonio, Texas.

25 YEARS AGO

From the Irish Times, July 10, 1915.

GERMAN SOUTH-WEST SURRENDERS.

The Press Bureau last night issued a despatch from Lord Buxton to the Colonial Office announcing that General Botha yesterday morning accepted Governor Seitz's surrender of all the German forces in German South-West Africa. Hostilities have ceased, and the campaign has thus been brought to a successful conclusion.

Events preceding the surrender moved rapidly in Damaraland. Some seven hundred Germans were captured and the number of guns taken represented only the first results of General Botha's masterly enveloping movement, which paralysed the Germans, and entirely frustrated any attempt at scattered guerilla warfare.

A later telegram states that General Botha's captures in South-West Africa numbered 204 officers, 3,166 men, 37 field guns and 22 machine guns.

OLDEST INHABITANTS DIE.

Wexford and Wicklow's oldest men died yesterday. George Franklin, who lived at Coolamurray, Enniscorthy, was 110 years of age and was active until a week ago. He was probably the oldest man in Ireland. Joseph Blake, whose death has taken place at Ballinglen, County Wicklow, was 103, and was the oldest inhabitant of County Wicklow.

NAVAL BATTLE IN MEDITERRANEAN

RICHELIEU PUT OUT OF ACTION

Boat Party Led By London Stockbroker

THE great French battleship Richelieu, the most modern and formidable capital ship in the world, was damaged by depth charges laid by a British naval speedboat and torpedoed from the air by the Fleet Air Arm on Monday morning last, and now lies with a list to port, and with damaged helm and stearing gear, in Dakkar Harbour, in French West Africa.

These facts were told to the House of Commons yesterday by Mr. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, when reviewing the steps which it has been found necessary to take in order to prevent warships falling into the hands of Germany or Italy.

The laying of the depth charges appears to have been a particularly daring operation. When the French Admiral made no reply to the terms offered by the British Admiral, a ship's boat made its way into Dakkar Harbour and, unobserved, laid depth charges under the stern of the warship.

When withdrawing the motor boat broke down and lay helpless in the harbour, until one of its engines was got running again. By this time it was observed, and was pursued, but escaped by driving over the harbour defence nets, which fouled the pursuing boat.

Later in the morning aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm attacked the Richelieu with torpedoes, several of which struck it.

Mr. Alexander paid a tribute to the skill, efficiency and courage with which the action had been carried out by officers and men, adding that, as a result of the measures which had been taken recently by the Navy, grave anxiety as to the danger of the French Fleet passing into the hands of Germany had been removed.

Lieutenant-Commander R. H. Bristowe, who was in charge of the boat that laid the depth charges, was a member of the London Stock Exchange until the war broke out, and is 33 years of age.

FIRST LORD TELLS THE HOUSE

The House would remember, he said, that on July 4 the Prime Minister described the painful, but very necessary, action which we had taken on the previous day to prevent units of the French Fleet lying in British and North African ports from passing under enemy control.

"Since that date the Royal Navy has carried out two further operations designed to increase the security of this country against the use of French warships by the enemy," he said. On July 6 a French battle cruiser of the Dunkerque Class, which had been damaged and driven ashore at Oran, was attacked by aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm, which obtained six hits. As a result this powerful ship will be incapable of effective use for a long time to come.

"Apart from the ships thus dealt with, there lay at Dakkar, in French West Africa, the 35,000-ton battleship Richelieu, which had just been completed, and is the most modern and formidable capital ship in the world immediately available for active operations.

OPERATION PLANNED

"In accordance with the decision announced to the House by the Prime Minister, His Majesty's Government decided that steps must also be taken to ensure that this vessel did not fall into enemy hands in a condition in which she could be used against us. A force was accordingly despatched to Dakkar, with orders to present to the French Admiral there proposals similar to those afforded to the French Commander at Oran.

"On July 7 the flag officer entrusted with this operation sent one of his captains ahead in a sloop in order to present the terms in person. On arrival this ship was informed by the French authorities that they would open fire if she approached close to the harbour, and it was only after an interval that the French consented to receive this communication by signal.

THE BRITISH TERMS

NO SATISFACTORY REPLY

"In view of the statements made by the French Government concerning the terms offered at Oran, I think that it is desirable that I should recapitulate now those put to the Admiral at Dakkar. His Majesty's Government offered four alternatives:—

First—That the French ship should sail with reduced crew under escort to a British port with a guarantee that the crew would at once be repatriated, and that at the end of the war the ship returned to France;

Secondly—They should sail with reduced crew to a French port in the West Indies, where they could be demilitarised or, perhaps, entrusted to the United States for safekeeping;

Thirdly—That the ship should be demilitarised in Dakkar within twelve hours; or Fourthly—It should be sunk with a time limit some hours after the receipt of the signal by the French authority.

"No satisfactory reply was received within this limit. Notwithstanding, the British Naval Flag Officer in charge waited longer before carrying out his orders to use force. Finally, as it became clear that the French authorities did not propose to accede to any of the British suggestions, he had no alternative but to carry out his painful duty in the early hours of July 8.

ATTACK BY MOTOR BOAT

"The attack upon the Richelieu was twofold.

"A ship's boat, under the command of Lieutenant-Commander R. H. Bristow, was sent into the harbour carrying depth charges. With great daring he successfully passed the boom defences, and went alongside the port quarter of the Richelieu. At the right moment depth charges were dropped close under the stern of the warship as she lay at anchor in the shallow water, in order to damage her propellers and steering gear.

"The motor boat began to withdraw immediately after dropping the depth charges, but while still in the harbour broke down and lay helpless. The crew, however, succeeded in getting one engine running just as they were discovered, and the boat, which was pursued, managed to escape by crossing the harbour defence nets which had fouled its pursuer.

"I am sure the House will join with me in paying tribute to the gallantry—(cheers)—with which this operation was carried out, although I think that it must be obvious to the House that anyone who undertook an operation like that ran the risk the whole time of blowing himself up.

TORPEDOES FROM THE AIR

"The main attack was entrusted to aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm, and took place after the attack by the motor boat. These aircraft were successful with their torpedoes, a number of which hit the Richelieu. The motor boat, which was still in the harbour, without waiting to see the attack, heard five explosions, and then saw smoke issuing from the battleship. Air reconnaissance since carried out has established that the Richelieu has a list to port, and is down by the stern. A large quantity of oil fuel covers the water around the ship. All our aircraft returned safely, in spite of heavy anti-aircraft fire.

"I desire, as I am sure the House will, to pay tribute to the skill, efficiency, and courage with which this action has been carried out by the officers and men concerned. (Cheers.) The House will appreciate the result of this painful action which we have had to take.

FRANCE'S CAPITAL SHIPS

FATE OF EIGHT GREAT VESSELS

"When the armistice was signed France had eight capital ships, fit to form a line of battle under present conditions. Of these, three of the Bretagne and Courbet classes have now passed under our control, one has been sunk, one badly damaged and immobilised. That makes five completed of the Bretagne and Courbet classes.

"Of the two modern battle cruisers, one has been driven ashore at Oran, and, as I have already mentioned, will be out of action for a long time to come, if not permanently; and the other managed, as the Prime Minister told the House, to escape, and is presumed to have reached Toulon; but only after having been hit by a torpedo, which will immobilise her for some time. There remains, in addition, only the sister ship of the Richelieu, the Jean Bart, which will not be completed for operational service for some months to come.

ANXIETY REMOVED

"I need not emphasise that the transfer of this powerful modern capital fleet to the enemy would have altered the whole balance of naval strength with incalculable results to our cause. As a result of the measures which we have taken this grave anxiety is now removed.

"Perhaps the House will permit me to add a word of thanks to our Naval Staff, who had to plan these recent operations immediately following the completion of the evacuation in the face of the enemy of troops and refugees, totalling no fewer than 600,000, the greatest achievement of its kind in the history of naval operations, and a remarkable tribute to the value of our power—power we do not intend to lose. But rather do we intend to prevent the seaborne invasion of these islands and the escape of any marauders who dare to set foot here." (Cheers.)

CRUISERS WATCHED

Replying to questions, Mr. Alexander said there were some cruisers still under the control of the French authorities and would have to be watched, but he hoped the House would not press him for further information. He would prefer for strategic reasons not to give the name of the Flag Officer in command of the operations, as he did not wish to reveal which was the unit of the Fleet Air Arm which took part, or to say at the moment where their ship was.

Mr. Hannah (C., Bilston)—May we not express sympathy with the French sailors in this matter?

Mr. Alexander—Of course, there is no member of the Government, and certainly no officer or man in the British Fleet, who does not regret to the utmost that this action was necessary. The Commanding Officer in charge of the operations, after they were over, sent a signal to the French Admiral expressing regret at having to carry out this painful duty and hoping that there were no casualties.

THE MAN WITH THE DEPTH CHARGES

Lieutenant-Commander R. H. Bristowe, the man who was in charge of the ship's boat which entered Dakkar harbour, and with great daring dropped depth charges close to the stern of the Richelieu, was until the war broke out a stockbroker. He was a member of the Stock Exchange.

A friend said to a Press Association reporter last night: "The action is typical of Lieutenant-Commander Bristowe; it is just the sort of thing one would expect him to do. He is a real bulldog-breed type of man, with great courage."

Lieutenant-Commander Bristowe is 33.

BRITISH REPORT OF THE FIGHT

£9,500,000 A DAY

Britain's War Expenditure

BRITAIN is now spending £9,500,000 a day on war. Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, yesterday, moving a supplementary vote of credit for £1,000,000,000, warned the country that "further contributions from taxation towards the cost of the war must clearly be the very highest possible, and must cover the widest possible field, and it must soon be made."

The Chancellor stated that of the vote of £700,000,000 granted last March as the first instalment for war expenditure, Britain had spent £575,000,000. If that expenditure went on, as it must at present, or at an increased rate, the vote would be exhausted in two or three weeks.

£50,000,000 A WEEK

The present rate of war expenditure was now in the neighbourhood of more than £50,000,000 a week. For the last four weeks the average rate of expenditure directly on the war had been £54,000,000, which was equivalent to a daily rate of over £7,500,000. Of this some £6,500,000 a day was for the Navy, Army, Air Force, and the Ministries of Supply and Aircraft Production. The remaining million was the rate of expenditure on other war services, such as Ministries of Shipping, Food and Home Security, and the cost of such services as evacuation and emergency hospitals.

The rise in the cost of the fighting services accounted for the whole of the increase. It had risen from £4,000,000 in March last.

These figures, he said, provided tangible evidence of the great and rapid increase that was being made in the main war effort. They were also further proof of Britain's fixed determination to spare no effort in money or any other way until victory was achieved. It was impossible to forecast the rate of expenditure in the next few months, and to say how long a particular sum voted now would last.

THE BIGGEST VOTE

The vote of £1,000,000,000 he asked for was the largest ever taken at one time. It was a vast sum, judged even by modern standards. It was available only for the war services. When debt services, civil votes and social service expenditure were added to the daily war costs, Britain was spending, approximately, £9,500,000 a day. This was a serious figure. He felt its implications were not sufficiently realised.

"The gap between revenue and expenditure is widening. The further contribution from taxation towards the cost of the war must clearly be the very highest possible, must cover the widest possible field, and it must soon be made. There must also be a strict curtailment of unnecessary consumption, and, in addition, there must be a continuous flow of savings from small and large investors to the Exchequer. We must be ready to make the heavy and necessary sacrifice to maintain sound financial methods, vital not only for waging the war, but so that we can emerge financially strong and thus ensure some reasonable prospect of decent conditions and tolerable lives for the people of this country."

The vote was agreed to.

The New French Constitution

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

BERLIN, Tuesday.

BY 395 votes to 3 the French Chamber of Deputies to-day approved a resolution declaring that "there is occasion for a revision of the Constitution," states a Berne despatch to the German News Agency. M. Reynaud, the former Premier, was present at the meeting with his head bandaged, following his recent motor accident. M. Herriot, Speaker of the Chamber presided.

The French Senate subsequently passed the resolution by 225 votes to one.

The resolution was passed after the House had heard a statement from M. Mistler, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber. M. Laval, the Vice-Premier, told the House that he would reply to any questions at a preliminary joint session of the Chamber and the Senate to be held to-morrow morning before the meeting of the National Assembly.

When the Assembly meets M. Laval will demand full powers for the Pétain Government to draw up the new Constitution. He will submit the following resolution:—"The National Assembly confers on the Government of the Republic, on the signature and authority of Marshal Pétain, President of the Council of Ministers, full powers for the purpose of drawing up the new Constitution of the French State. The Constitution will safeguard the rights of labour, of the family, and of the fatherland. The Constitution shall be ratified by the Assembly, which will itself have created it."

DUKE OF WINDSOR'S NEW POST

The British Colonial Office announced last night that the King has appointed the Duke of Windsor to be Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Bahama Islands, West Indies.

It was announced on Monday that Sir C. C. F. Dundas, who had been Governor since 1936, has been appointed Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Uganda Protectorate.

The Governorship of the Bahamas carries with it a salary of £3,000 a year.

The Bahamas include 29 islands, over 650 islets and nearly 2,400 rocks, and extend for about 550 miles between Florida and Haiti. They cover an area of 4,400 square miles, and have a population of nearly 60,000.

ITALIAN BATTLESHIP HIT

FORCES CONCENTRATING NEAR MALTA

LONDON, Wednesday Morning.

THE Commander-in-Chief, Mediterranean Forces, reported he has made contact with enemy forces east of Malta.

One of the British capital ships has obtained a direct hit on an Italian battleship, and, at the time of the receipt of this information, the Italians were being pursued.

Four Italian aircraft were destroyed and several others were damaged.

TEXT OF COMMUNIQUE

The British Admiralty communiqué says:—

"During the course of operations in the Central Mediterranean, East of Malta, the Commander-in-Chief, Mediterranean, reported that in the afternoon of 9th July he had made contact with enemy forces, consisting of two battleships, a number of eight-inch and six-inch gun cruisers and destroyers.

"Almost immediately after contact was gained the enemy retired behind a smoke screen laid by their destroyers, but before the enemy was obscured one hit at extreme range was obtained by one of our capital ships on an Italian battleship. At the time of the receipt of this information the enemy were being pursued. The enemy ships were also attacked by our Fleet Air Arm aircraft. No other details are yet available.

"Simultaneously with the operation in the Central Mediterranean another force, based on Gibraltar, carried out a sweep towards the Central Mediterranean. This latter force reports that four enemy aircraft were destroyed and seven others damaged, of which three are unlikely to return to their base, but no surface forces were encountered."

ITALIAN VERSION

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

ROME, Wednesday.

The Correspondent of the Stefani Agency on the "Naval Front" has sent the following wireless message:—

"Italian naval forces yesterday encountered British naval forces who sought to attack Italian naval units who were returning from escorting an Italian convoy to a port in Cyrenaica (Libya). A battle between the opposing forces began at 2.30 yesterday afternoon in latitude 38, longitude 18 south of Cape Spartivento—the extreme point of Calabria.

"The battle raged until 9 p.m. last night, and numerous bombing formations, in successive waves, attacked enemy ships with heavy calibre bombs.

"At the close of the night the British squadron proceeded in a southerly direction, pursued by Italian naval forces."

MONDAY'S ENGAGEMENT

"BRITISH CRUISER SUNK"

The Special Correspondent of the Stefani Agency on the "naval front" claims that a British battleship and an aircraft-carrier were damaged, and a British cruiser sunk, in an engagement on Monday between Italian 'planes and British warships near the island of Candia (Crete).

The correspondent, in a wireless message from the naval front, says:—

"On Monday an Italian seroplane carrying out reconnaissance work reported by wireless that a British squadron was navigating in the Mediterranean near the island of Candia. The squadron was composed of one battleship, two cruisers and an aircraft-carrier.

"Italian air formations, after a flight of 500 miles across the sea, reached the enemy and dropped heavy calibre bombs, despite anti-aircraft fire and an attempt by the enemy to put out a smoke screen.

"A battleship and an aircraft-carrier were damaged and a cruiser sunk.

FIRST ENGAGEMENT

The only previous occasion on which surface vessels of the Italian Fleet have been in action against ships of the Royal Navy was on June 27, when the Italian destroyer Espero was sunk by British light forces.

Unofficial details revealed that, although operating from an extreme range of 18,000 yards and with the light failing, the British leading ship engaged a number of Italian destroyers. Within twenty minutes there was a terrific explosion on board the hindermost Italian ship, showing that a direct hit had been scored.

The other Italian destroyers retired at high speed under cover of a smoke screen and the failing light.

Forty-four survivors were picked up from the Espero.

ITALIAN SHIPS

Two of Italy's battleships are claimed to be the latest and most efficient in the world. They are the new 35,000 tons Littorio and Vittorio Veneto, both launched in 1937. They have overall lengths of 775 feet, complements of 1,600, and their armament includes 9 15-inch and 12 6-inch guns, and are credited with speeds of 30 knots.

Four other battleships were laid down before the last war and have been modernised. They are the Conte Di Cavour and the Giulio Cesare—both 23,622 tons—reconstructed 1933-37, with ten 12.6-inch guns and four aircraft, and the Caio Duilio and the Andrea Doria—both 23,622 tons, reconstructed 1937-39, ten 12.6-inch guns and four aircraft.

BRITISH ADMIRAL AND WIFE

FORMER CHAIRMAN OF "THE LINK" DETAINED

Admiral Sir Barry Domvile, a former Chief of Britain's Naval Intelligence, and one-time chairman of "The Link," and his wife have been detained under the Defence Regulations.

The Press Association learned yesterday at Sir Barry's home, "Robin's Tree," Putney, London, of a surprise visit by Special Branch detectives of Scotland Yard after midnight on Sunday, when Sir Barry and Lady Domvile were removed in custody.

Admiral Sir Barry Domvile, who is 62, is the eldest son of the late Admiral Sir Compton Domvile. He entered the Navy in 1892.

"The Link," an organisation to promote understanding between the German and British peoples, was founded in 1937, with Sir Barry as Chairman.

In August last Sir Samuel Hoare, then Home Secretary, stated in the House of Commons that "The Link" was being used as an instrument of the German propaganda service, and that money had been received from Germany by one of its active organisers.

On the outbreak of war it was reported that "The Link" was closed down, and in an interview Sir Barry said: "The King's enemies become our enemies."

Sir Barry was Assistant Secretary of the Committee of Imperial Defence from 1912 to 1914.

Throughout the last war he held commands in the North Sea.

His marriage to Alexandrina, daughter of the late Mr. von der Heydt, took place in 1916. There are two sons and a daughter.

The British Ministry of Supply has appointed Mr. W. T. Wilson, Chief Officer of Supplies of the London County Council, to be Director-General of Equipment and Stores in the Ministry. Mr. Wilson fills the position recently vacated by Lord Catto on his appointment as Finance Adviser to the Treasury.

GOVERNMENT MAY CONTROL COAL TRADE

STOCK ESSENTIAL SUPPLIES NOW—MR. LEMASS

THE danger of an attack on Eire, of the country's isolation, or both these contingencies, has increased within the past two or three weeks. The considered opinion of the Government is that the country is facing one or both of these contingencies.

This information was broadcast by Mr. Sean Lemass, Minister for Supplies, when he spoke from Radio Eireann yesterday evening on the subject of "Essential Supplies."

If this country were isolated as a result of an attack on Great Britain it would be impossible for us to import fresh supplies so long as that condition of isolation continued. If this country were itself invaded by a hostile army there were very grave risks in having the bulk of stocks of essential commodities concentrated in a few centres. There were the risks that these stores might be destroyed in the course of military operations; that invasion might disorganise internal transport facilities, and that if all supplies were readily available in a few places they might easily be seized and used for a purpose other than that for which they were accumulated.

TIME RUNNING OUT

The time for preparation was running out, continued Mr. Lemass, and a very great deal remained to be done. The redistribution of the reserve stocks of essential goods, and the supplementing of those stocks, was a matter of urgency. The Government had not the resources or the organisation to enable it to handle the matter without the co-operation of the public.

In the case of most of the important commodities, and in most areas in the country, the advice given in his last broadcast was acted upon. But it had not been acted upon as fully as the Government considered necessary.

The coal position was by no means satisfactory, though during the past two weeks great quantities of coal had been imported. They had not got the co-operation, down along the line from importer to consumer, that was required to enable the present abundance of supplies to be fully availed of while it lasts. He urged that industrialists and domestic consumers should provide themselves with adequate stocks of coal. Everybody who was in a position to do so should make sure that he had sufficient to carry him over the winter. Anybody who had a back yard or a garden should store a reserve of coal there, when he had his cellar full. Merchants and importers should also see to it that their storage space was filled with coal, and, if they were wise, they would provide additional storage capacity.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL

Mr. Lemass regretted that he was not satisfied that all coal importers and merchants were doing as much as could be expected of them in this direction, and reminded them that, at this critical time, they had certain responsibilities to the community. If they were not prepared to discharge those responsibilities it might be necessary for the Government to take over complete control of the coal trade, and, if they did so, they would have no time to listen to the complaints of those who fail them now.

In the case of flour and sugar, although there had been a considerable acceleration of the outward flow of supplies to traders and consumers it had not been nearly sufficient to make any appreciable impression on reserve stocks. If the worst we had to face was isolation without internal disturbance, then, so long as supplies held out, nobody would go short. But the greatest danger is invasion.

"We are in the centre of the war area. A glance at a map will show the importance that a belligerent might attach to the possession of our ports and territory. It is true that we have proclaimed our neutrality and made known our determination to defend it to the full limit of our man power, but these declarations will not make us immune from attack. Invasion will be resisted, and, apart from our own efforts, may produce counter-invasion, with the result that on our territory the next great battle of the war may be fought. If that should happen, it is inevitable that many parts of the country may be isolated for long periods, and it is, therefore, necessary that in every area the supplies of essential foodstuffs on the spot should be sufficient to meet the needs of the local population, enlarged possibly by refugees from other areas.

KEEP STORES FULL

"For that reason we ask wholesalers and retail traders to render this service to the public—the keeping of their stores full, so as to ensure that they will be able to meet all demands, even if fresh supplies cannot be obtained. For that reason we urge local authorities and others responsible for the management of institutions to stock up, and also advise all householders who can afford it to lay in reserve supplies of foodstuffs, particularly of flour and sugar, and to keep them in reserve. That is to say, not to use them for immediate consumption, but, instead, to keep buying their normal supplies as heretofore.

"I have seen it stated that this advice neglects the position of the poor who cannot buy in advance of their needs. Such is the very reverse of the case. In the first place, no matter how much flour, sugar, coal or other essential commodities private householders or institutions may stock our supplies will remain more than sufficient to meet all needs for a very long time. If there were the slightest danger of shortage this advice would not be given. The Government has day-to-day information of the position concerning supplies of all these goods, and at the first indication that individual purchases may create a shortage, artificial or real, a system of control can be introduced at once. Secondly, it is precisely to meet the case of those who cannot lay in advance supplies that traders are asked to do it for them by keeping their stocks at a maximum. Furthermore, the Government is making administrative arrangements to ensure that nobody need go without the necessaries of life because of lack of purchasing power, arrangements of such a character that they can continue to work, even if contact with the central authority should be cut."

NO RATIONING SCHEME

The introduction of a rationing scheme for foodstuffs was not now necessary, as supplies were adequate to meet all demands for a long time, and it would not become necessary unless there was a serious change in the general position. Nevertheless, economy in the use of all foodstuffs should be practised in every household. Waste was unjustifiable at any time, but particularly so in times like these when the future was so uncertain.

The Government expected all importers, manufacturers, and others concerned with the importation of goods which had to be procured abroad, to buy and import all they can get while there was still time. It asked wholesalers, traders and consumers to facilitate them in passing these goods down along the line, by buying exceptional quantities and storing them. By doing so they would be freeing storage space and minimising the economic consequences of invasion by procuring the widest possible distribution of supplies.

"I again emphasise the urgency of this matter," concluded the Minister. "The dangers we foresee are not in next year or the year after, but possibly in this week or next week. I ask you, therefore, to act at once on the advice which the Government is giving you, because it is in the national interest, and in your own personal interest as well."

SEND CHILDREN TO COUNTRY

CITY MANAGER'S ADVICE

In a broadcast appeal for air-raid precaution service volunteers on Radio Eireann last night, the Dublin City Manager, Mr. P. J. Hernon, said that the situation was so grave at the moment that the Government would be glad if those who had friends in the country would send their children to them at once. This applied particularly to the congested areas of the city, he said, and the more people who could comply with the request the easier would it be for the A.R.P. services to deal with other evacuation problems.

All efforts to perfect the A.R.P. services would be fruitless unless there were sufficient volunteers for the different branches of the service. One piece of work the A.R.P. service might be called upon to organise quickly was the evacuation of women and children, and of the infirm and aged from the city. Citizens should, to facilitate this, give the fullest information asked for by the wardens regarding the personnel of their households.

FIRE-FIGHTING

A large number of volunteers was still required for the fire-fighting services, and all necessary equipment had been provided by the Government, and would be available for dealing with fires. A number of motor cars were needed for that particular service, and he asked owners to come forward and offer their cars.

For the casualty and first aid branch they were indeed fortunate in having at their disposal the full strength of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, with its 2,000 fully-trained members. The brigade would man the first aid posts, and would provide the necessary street patrol and stretcher-bearers. About 50 ambulances and about 200 motor cars were required for the transport of possible casualties. So far the response to appeals for those vehicles had been disappointing, and there, too, was an opportunity for owners to come forward and offer their cars in that equally vital arm of the scheme. He was happy to say that the Red Cross and the Knights of Malta had also offered the services of their trained members for first aid purposes, and their offers would be accepted to the fullest extent.

RESCUE AND DEMOLITION

It was intended that the work of rescue and demolition should be carried out by squads of men recruited from the Dublin Building Trades Group. The decontamination service had been fully recruited from Corporation personnel, and had been trained under the supervision of the City Engineer.

The number of volunteers required still was very large, and in round figures might be taken to be 2,000.

Women could be enrolled as well as men, and would be of the greatest assistance for many of the services. A very important part could also be played by young people, who could be very usefully employed in connection with the message centres and in such work as the assembly of gas masks.

SEVERAL DEAD IN AIR RAIDS IN BRITAIN

R.A.F. HAVOC ON THE CONTINENT

SIX persons are reported to have been killed yesterday when German aeroplanes raided South-Eastern England.

Four German 'planes were destroyed by British fighters and anti-aircraft gunfire, when bombing attacks were made by Germans on various areas of England.

The Royal Air Force carried out a series of raids in Germany, Holland, Belgium and German-occupied areas of France. Aerodromes, shipping, and the naval bases at Kiel and Wilhelmshaven were damaged, and two German warships were set on fire. Seven of the British aircraft failed to return.

A South-East England coast town had a number of spent cartridges yesterday afternoon as British 'planes engaged several German raiders in battle among the clouds.

When the Germans flew westwards over another town British fighters again attacked and finally drove them away. One of the raiders is believed to have been shot into the sea. There were no reports of bombs having been dropped.

R.A.F. fighters met them off the south-east coast, and the battle ended in the Germans fleeing. German 'planes were also believed to have flown over North-West England.

In a South-East England town early yesterday a woman was killed and her husband injured. Their dog was found dead near the crater.

One high explosive bomb fell in a cemetery, disturbing about a dozen graves.

At least one German bomber was believed to have been hit and crippled over the south-east coast of Scotland.

A British Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security communique last night states:

"Enemy aircraft made bombing attacks in several districts to-day. Some damage was done to premises at a Bristol Channel port, and a few casualties were reported.

"Fighter aircraft and A.A. guns went into action at a number of points, and losses were inflicted on the enemy.

"Reports so far received confirm that two enemy bombers and one fighter have been destroyed by our fighters and one enemy fighter by A.A. gunfire."

SIX DEATHS REPORTED

The death roll in the South-West of England in the daylight air raid yesterday was believed to be six. Several people were also treated for minor injuries.

EIGHT REPORTED SHOT DOWN

In addition to four German aircraft already shot down yesterday during raids on Great Britain, four other German aircraft have been destroyed, an official statement announced early this morning.

A number of other German 'planes were severely damaged during fighting, and are unlikely to reach their bases.

WIDESPREAD R.A.F. RAIDS

DAMAGE IN FOUR COUNTRIES

The Air Ministry issued a communiqué last night, which stated that yesterday R.A.F. bombers made daylight attacks on concentrations of German barges on the Dutch canals at Zwolle, Haten and Weest, and also near Elberg and Delft. Many barges were sunk, wrecked, or set on fire.

Other aircraft bombed a German supply ship in the Danish harbour of Aalborg.

British bombers also attacked the aerodromes in German occupation at Soissons and Douai. Aircraft personnel and transport were damaged. Aircraft of the Coastal Command attacked and damaged German patrol vessels off the Danish coast.

All British aircraft returned safely.

Last night R.A.F. bombers attacked the naval bases of Kiel and Wilhelmshaven, where damage was done to the dockyards and a German warship was set on fire. Further damage was done to the oil refineries at Hamburg and to the goods yard at Hamm.

The aerodromes at Waalhaven, Amsterdam and Brussels were also bombed.

One of the aircraft is missing.

SEVEN 'PLANES MISSING

On Tuesday a formation of British bombers attacked Bergen, where an ammunition dump was set on fire and damage done to a ship and seaplane slipway.

Another formation of R.A.F. bombers attacked aircraft lined up on the Sola Aerodrome at Stavanger. The attack was pressed home in the face of strong opposition from German fighters and ground defences. One German fighter was shot down.

Seven of the British aircraft failed to return.

WARSHIPS SET ON FIRE

DAMAGE AT KIEL DOCKS

Two German warships, believed to be destroyers or light cruisers, were bombed and set on fire in the early hours of yesterday morning during further raids on German naval bases and dockyards by aircraft of the Bomber Command, says a Press Association War Special.

The ships, two of a group of four, were seen at anchor east of Wilhelmshaven, and though they were partially concealed by mist and protected by land and sea batteries, the British aircraft succeeded in their attack. At Kiel dock sheds and slipways were damaged as well as a crane jetty. One stick of bombs straddled the dock and started a fire, which one pilot could still see after he had been on his homeward course for ten minutes.

Attacks were also made on the aerodrome at Evere, near Brussels, and the oil refineries at Homburg.

A German supply ship was attacked near Aalborg, in Denmark, and is believed to have been hit by a salvo of heavy bombs, some of which also burst on the wharves in the harbour.

BARGES WRECKED

In the afternoon a series of raids caused considerable damage among the tightly-packed barges on the canal system of Western Holland. Of a group of 17 barges seen on a canal some miles from Zwolle at least four were directly hit after a low level attack, and two of them burst into flames. Wreckage was later seen floating in the canal.

Other barges were hit near Amsterdam, and at other points on the Dutch canals, where groups of barges were bombed, and wharves adjoining the basins were struck with high explosives.

Other bombers attacked German-occupied aerodromes in Belgium and Northern France. At Soissons, north-east of Paris, heavy bombs were seen bursting among a group of three aircraft standing on the aerodrome, and at Douai a salvo of bombs hit several runways.

SUPPLY VESSEL SUNK

German shipping off the Danish coast was attacked by Coastal Command aircraft today, stated the British Air Ministry News Service last night.

Two large minesweepers were trying to clear part of a minefield when a patrolling Hudson attacked out of the sun, and dropped a bomb which exploded directly under the bow of the leading minesweeper. The bows were lifted by the explosion.

Another Hudson followed up a dive-bombing attack on an enemy supply ship with machine-gun fire, and the vessel was seen settling down by the stern.

A few miles away a second vessel was also attacked by machine-gun fire. After the pilot had raked it with his guns he saw smoke rising amidships.

M.B.E. FOR MRS. CARDWELL

The King has awarded the Medal of the Order of the British Empire (Civil Division) for meritorious service to Mrs. Norman Cardwell, who, with great pluck and presence of mind, disarmed and took into custody an airman who had landed by parachute from a German aircraft, damaged during an attack on North-East England on Monday last.

This announcement was made from 10 Downing street last night.

YACHTSMEN'S ORDEAL

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

From Our Correspondent.

ROSSLARE HARBOUR, Tuesday.

Three Irish yachtsmen had a narrow escape from drowning off the South Wexford coast to-day. They were Mr. West, of Greystones, and Messrs. Fitzgerald and Donovan, of Dublin. Their eight-ton yacht, Sheila, of Greystones, was bound from Arklow to Rosslare when she got caught in a strong southerly wind. Heavy seas lashed over her, and her dinghy was swept away. Eventually the Sheila was driven ashore and was pounded by heavy breakers. The three men then jumped overboard, and clinging to a boom and a lifebelt, they managed to swim ashore. They landed in an exhausted condition.

When the distress call was received in Rosslare Harbour the lifeboat, under Coxswain Wickham, put out in heavy seas. She dashed to the scene, which was about eight miles north of Rosslare Lighthouse. By the time she arrived the men had struggled ashore.

No trace of the yacht could be found.

MINES ON IRISH COAST

The Marine and Coast-Watching Service are contemplating laying mines at certain points along the coast of Ireland. Experiments have been made during the last few nights along the Dublin coast, where explosions have been heard. These mines are intended to reinforce other agencies of coastal defence.

The mines are being manufactured in this country, and the tests which have already been made are considered highly satisfactory. Notification of the laying of all such contact mines will be published for the information of shipping.

BULGARIAN CLAIMS MORE INSISTENT

Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, Tuesday.

A PRELIMINARY agreement between Hungary and the axis Powers, whereby Germany and Italy will call upon Rumania to give a slice of Transylvania to the Hungarians, was reported in diplomatic quarters here to-night.

The report is, so far, entirely without confirmation.

BULGARIA'S CALL

SOFIA, Tuesday.

The controlled Bulgarian Press to-day called upon the Balkan Entente—Rumania, Greece, Yugo-Slavia and Turkey—to help to bring about a peaceful settlement of Bulgaria's territorial revisionist claims "before it is too late."

Bulgaria has claims on Rumania and Greece.

The Press unanimously voiced this alternative:—"Unless you help us we might accept aid from Russia, Germany or Italy, and this might bring repercussions unfavourable to the Balkans."

Officials in Sofia said that Bulgaria had not been invited to send representatives to the Ciano-Ribbentrop meeting in Berlin—where the future of Rumania was believed to be one of the subjects under discussion—as had Hungary, who also has territorial claims on Rumania.

A high authoritative source in Athens denied to-night a rumour circulated by the official German News Agency—that Greece had expressed a desire to discuss Bulgaria's territorial claims in Greece.

OIL INTERESTS IN RUMANIA

BRITISH SALE TO RUSSIANS?

BUCHAREST, Tuesday.

Soldiers with fixed bayonets to-night guarded offices of all foreign oil companies, preventing the removal of documents concerning oil-field operations.

At the same time, there were unconfirmed reports that British interests were negotiating for the sale of their holding to Russians.

The Rumanian Government is taking an inventory of all assets of oil companies under a special decree. This action followed the expulsion of thirty British oilmen.

WORK OF IRISH RED CROSS

EMERGENCY HOSPITALS' SUPPLIES

"The danger of the Irish Red Cross having to deal with conditions arising from actual warfare are becoming greater, but I am confident that every member will prepare himself to make the most effective contribution to the work of the society in any situation that may arise."

So said Mr. Justice Conor Maguire, yesterday, as Chairman of the Central Council of the Irish Red Cross Society, at a meeting held in Dublin.

He referred, with regret, to the resignation of his predecessor, Mr. C. J. MacAuley, owing to pressure of professional duties.

At their meeting in March last the membership was under 3,000; it was now approaching 7,000. County branches had been established in all twenty-six counties. First aid classes were being held in all parts of the country, and the number attending these was 3,000. Work dépôts, under the control of their Emergency Hospitals' Supply Dépôt, were hard at work making knitted garments, bandages and dressings.

He appealed to all the members to encourage their committees to continue the work they were doing.

The Emergency Hospitals' Supplies Dépôt had purchased a considerable quantity of bandages and surgical dressing material. Their immediate aim in this connection was the production of 100,000 bandages and 100,000 dressings. In addition, they held in stock 200 mattresses, 200 pillows, 400 blankets. Supplies have been sent to Rosslare, Tory Island, Galway, and the Dublin branch.

In order to provide for the reception and care of refugees, the executive of the society have set up a sub-committee consisting of representatives of the Central Council, the Legion of Mary, St. Vincent de Paul Society, A.R.P., the Dublin Branch of the Society, the Society of Friends, Health Authorities, and the G.S. Railways Company. As yet, however, they had not been called on, as the refugee problem had not arisen.

The question of uniforms for detachments of the society, he said, would receive the early attention of the executive committee. A First Aid Manual is with the printers, and will be ready for sale in a short time.

He thanked the headquarters staff, consisting of the secretary, two paid typists, one voluntary typist and two junior clerical assistants, for its work. He thanked those members of the Central Council who had devoted many hours daily to sub-committee work, and to the Emergency Hospitals' Supplies Dépôt. He also thanked the voluntary workers who were making garments, bandages and surgical dressings, and, lastly, the donors of money or material.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CAMPS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—During the next few weeks many hundreds of young people—the Boys' Brigade, Scouts, Guides, etc.—are due to leave Dublin for their annual camps. The number camping in Eire will be greatly in excess of that of recent years, as it will include many who usually visit England or Wales.

In the present state of tension and uncertainty a leader who takes a party of young people for a fortnight's camp, perhaps a hundred miles from their homes, is shouldering a heavy responsibility. In most cases all arrangements have been completed, but there are people who consider that it would be unsafe to hold these camps this year. The absence of a statement on the matter from the authorities is causing some perplexity, and their guidance would be welcomed by all connected with the young people's organisations. It is hoped that a statement—if necessary, a Government order—will be issued at once.—Yours, etc.,

MacErlean and a jury at Steevens's Hospital, on George Plunkett (62), 3 Reginald square, Dublin. George Cassidy, of Annaly road, Dublin, said that he, an employé of Messrs. Dockrell and Sons, was in charge of a company of men, who were erecting a scaffold at Messrs. Guinness, Ltd. Plunkett was standing on a plank, and witness was passing planks up to him. Witness walked away to get another plank, and heard a crash. He ran back and found that a scaffolding pole had broken, and the deceased was pinned under the wreckage. The scaffolding had been tested when work was begun, and was found to be satisfactory. Dr. Anderson said that Plunkett had been admitted to Steevens's Hospital on May 23, and had died on July 7. Death, in his opinion, was due to general toxæmia, the result of the injuries received. The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence.

HOWTH URBAN COUNCIL

REPRESENTATION ON CORPORATION

Howth Urban District Council last night passed a resolution pressing for "just and adequate representation for the district" on the Dublin Corporation.

A resolution to this effect, proposed by Mr. R. J. Burke, was unanimously adopted. It was noted in the resolution that the Local Government (Dublin) (Amendment) Act, 1940, under which the Howth district was embraced in the Dublin area, no provision was made for representation for the district.

Mr. Burke spoke of the uneconomic condition of Howth and the efforts of the Ratepayers' Association, of which he was chairman, to secure the inclusion of Howth in the district of Dublin. He paid a tribute to the Irish Times, and, in particular, to its contributor, "Civis," "as the only institution appearing to have knowledge of, and giving intelligent information of, Dublin civic affairs." The suggestions made in the Irish Times, he said, might well have formed the basis of the report of the Tribunal, and if ever the findings of that body were seriously considered by a more intelligent and considerate Local Government Ministry, the articles would be a valuable reference.

They had been left to stew in their own juice for years, he said, and the ignoring of representation now was only adding insult to injury. It was significant that a number of prominent citizens, once members of the District Council, would not now touch it with a "forty-foot pole," but under better economic conditions there were many able and willing, and a number who might be a credit to the district in the Dublin Corporation. If the district were added to Clontarf for electoral purposes, as proposed under the Act, there would be little or no hope of even one councillor being elected by the people of Howth. They had no affinity with the Clontarf area, where the electors numbered 7,171, while the total in Howth was only 3,333.

Mr. E. Reid, who seconded, said that for an area that could give such good services for the pleasure of city people and the industrial possibilities in the district, the interests of Howth best could be served by representation in the Dublin Corporation.

It was decided to invite the assistance of all T.D.s in the area in the matter.

Mrs. F. A. Jermyn presided.

JAPANESE SEIZE A BRITISH SHIP

"TIMES" TELEGRAM.

SHANGHAI, Tuesday.

The Japanese Navy to-day seized the British coaster Shengking, on the ground that she was carrying 1,000,000 rounds of rifle ammunition for the French concession in Tientsin to the French concession here. The vessel is still being detained at Woosung. According to the Japanese Press, strong protest is to be lodged with the British Naval authorities on the ground that the shipment violates the spirit of the Japanese request to belligerents to withdraw their armed forces from the occupied areas.

The owners state that their vessels had carried such cargo before; that the ammunition was mentioned in the manifest, and that the ship was cleared by the Japanese authorities at Tientsin.—(Copyright, per P.A.)

APPEAL TO YOUNG MEN

Mr. Erskine H. Childers, T.D., speaking at Curraghboy, Co. Roscommon, said that within four weeks, perhaps less, all available defences would have to be completed.

"I would like to see more of the younger generation take part in our defence. The young men have grown up in an atmosphere of civil war, some of them are cynical and indifferent; but let them learn from the older generation the sense of inferiority, of humiliation, which destroys the roots of healthy, social civic life when a nation is occupied by a foreign state and governed against its will. This nation in the last two years has begun to order its economic existence. All the bitterness of civil war, the folly of the economic war differences have been passing away. The task of increasing the national income which has remained utterly stagnant remains to be accomplished. The two parties have discarded many outworn shibboleths. Let us preserve this heritage so hardly won as far as we can, and prepare to face severe and terrible conditions later by first defending our land against aggression."

THE FRENCH NAVY

BRITAIN GAINS 200 UNITS

VALUE OF ATLANTIC COAST TO GERMANY

By Our Military Correspondent.

BY far the most remarkable achievement of between-wars France was the building of an admirable Navy. Alike for its soundness of conception, its length of view, and its fixity of purpose, the work was deserving of the highest praise. It was the achievement of one man—Georges Leygues—who retained the Ministry of Marine—Administration in, Administration out—for quite an extraordinary number of years. Deservedly, after his death, his memory was perpetuated by naming after him the newest light cruiser then on the stocks at Saint Nazaire.

BUILDING A FLEET

The constructional part of the work was divided into a number of annual "slices" (tranches), and each programme was strictly adhered to. In the earlier slices only light craft were laid down—destroyers, submarines and light cruisers—the reason being the loss of practical building experience over a long period of years in French yards. After a time "Washington," or heavy, cruisers were included in the slices; then battle cruisers; and, finally, battleships of the most formidable fighting strength. But, at each successive stage, the traditional excellence of French naval construction—going back far into sailing ship days—made itself felt. It could reasonably be claimed for each successive "tranche" that the ships comprising it were definitely superior to most of their contemporaries in other navies.

Simultaneously with the material side, the personnel side progressed in a corresponding degree. The standard of training and efficiency was very high among both officers and ratings. This was signalised by many actions in the present war. For example, the destroyer, Sirocco, holds the record submarine "bag" for any individual ship—two on her own and a share in two others. The recent action at Oran was worthy of the memory of the Vengeur. Admiral Gensoul acted as Captain Langsdorff would have done, were he given a free hand.

A METRIC PROBLEM

In discussions about the disposal of French ships under the terms of the recent tripartite Armistice one very vital point seems to have been altogether overlooked—the metric system, to wit. Even had Britain obtained complete control of the French ships she could not have manned them effectively. All the instruments—navigational, fire control, engine-room control, range-finders—would have been quite useless to British crews. A thorough-going replacement would have been required—a thing quite out of the question in any but the very small craft. The handicap would have been very much less in the case of German crews—and less still in the case of Italian.

The incident at Oran has, of course, resulted in the annulling of the Naval Clause of the Armistice. In other words, the Germans and Italians will now assume entire freedom of action regarding all ships that may come into their possession. It is, accordingly, desirable to form at least a rough estimate as to which, exactly, these are. This is not easy, but we have certain data. Including the mighty Richelieu, the vast bulk of the ships-of-the-line are out of reach of the Germans. Even Strasbourg is damaged and will require quite some time for repairs. The British concentrated on putting the battle-fleet hors de combat—ensuring their own continued superiority, in this particular, against any possible coalition.

FRANCE'S CRUISERS

As to cruisers—heavy and light—France entered the war with 19. One was sunk and six others are in British ports. This leaves 12 to account for—whereof two or three are on the Indo-China Station; and, consequently, needless to consider just yet. The others still constitute a problem of importance. Moreover, they do not include "nearly-cruisers," such as Mogador, destroyed at Oran. Most of the sixty odd splendid destroyers are also unaccounted for. Eight were already lost and eight are known to be in British hands. The best part of fifty are unaccounted for as yet. The same is the case regarding the eighty odd submarines, but a greater proportion are in British harbours than of the destroyers, so far as we know.

Of poussière navale, the British have acquired over 200 units. At the present time these are certainly those most useful for work in the Channel, and which can be turned to immediate account. Incidentally, the German communiqués reporting raids on Channel convoys afford proof that the Channel is not closed to merchant shipping in any complete fashion as yet.

GERMANY'S AIM?

What we may consider likely now is that Germany will proceed to re-constitute—from among the French ships—the flotilla strength lost in the naval operations in Norway. More than that she will scarcely aim at for the time being: It is unlikely that sufficient trained crews exist for any more. But, unquestionably, training will be vastly speeded up, now that plenty of ships are available for the purpose. Germany, in short, is now in a position to assume the rôle of a navy—weaker than the adversary, but not to the same extent as heretofore.

But Germany, by the Armistice, won very much more than French vessels of war. In addition, she has won the French Atlantic coast. By this there is not meant the Channel coast from Dunkerque to Brest, including British territory in the Channel Islands. That is a good deal, certainly, but it is confronted by what is probably the best organised and most thoroughly studied sea front in existence or in naval history. The really useful gain lies beyond Brest—along the coasts of the vast Bay of Biscay. This is opposed by no similar, only by the watch from the periscopes of inshore submarines.

PREVIOUS EXPEDITIONS

It was from this great coastal sector that there started any expedition of recent times that got to shore in Great Britain. In 1745 Prince Charlie sailed from Nantes, though he, to be sure, could count on solid "First" Column support at home. In 1797 Tate entered the Bristol Channel from Brest. And, of course, all the '98 expeditions for Ireland started from this quarter, too. Humbert sailed from Rochefort, as did the supply ships that followed him later. Tone sailed from Brest with Hardy, as he had sailed with Hoche two years before. The reason why this coast got "priority" in the older wars was that it was by far the hardest sector to watch. That was in the days of sail, and, possibly, conditions have altered nowadays.

LOCAL SECURITY FORCE

Group "A" of the Rathmines Local Security Force paraded last night to the extent of nearly a hundred men. The members, who paraded at the police station, presented a fine appearance as they marched in fours to Portobello Barracks, where, having broken up into squads, they performed foot-drill for the best part of two hours under the supervision of Inspector D. H. Maher, of the Garda Siochana, assisted by Sergeant William Molloy and Garda Michael Carroll. The standard of foot-drill was pronounced to be very high.

The Local Security Force is now making rapid progress in County Clare. In Kilrush some 400 men have joined.

In Lissycasey 64 men have enrolled. Mr. Michael McMahon was appointed group leader and Mr. James Doogan assistant.

"A" Section of the Local Security Force in Ceanannus Mor has elected as leader Mr. Bernard Carolan and as deputy leader Mr. Michael Fox. The force created a favourable impression when they marched through the town.

In Oldcastle Mr. Joseph Carroll was elected leader and Mr. George Ahearn deputy leader of "A" Section. "B" Section elected Mr. William Tuite as leader.

Increase for Cork Labourers.—At a cost which he estimated at £300 per annum, the Cork City Manager announced that increases of 2s. 6d. per week had been granted to Corporation labourers, members of the Fire Brigade, porters, and messengers with three or more years' consecutive service.

WALL STREET IDLE

GAINS PREDOMINATE

From Reuter's Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

With traders showing no disposition to discount anything except day-to-day happenings, Wall Street was idle and narrow, with minor gains predominating. Meanwhile interest is focussed on the forthcoming Democratic Convention. The turnover of 300,000 shares comprised 588 issues, of which 215 were higher and 203 were lower.

The opening was dull, but steady. Prices improved under the leadership of the Steels, but with the moderate gains attracting realising, the market at mid-day was quieter. Packard Motor was very quiet, pending further developments in the U.S. in connection with the British aero-engine contract. Rail Shares reflected continued support for Rail Bonds, while Copper issues were supported, in spite of a poor demand for the metal.

The market was inclined to drift downward, with the final list mostly minor fractions either way. The close was steady.

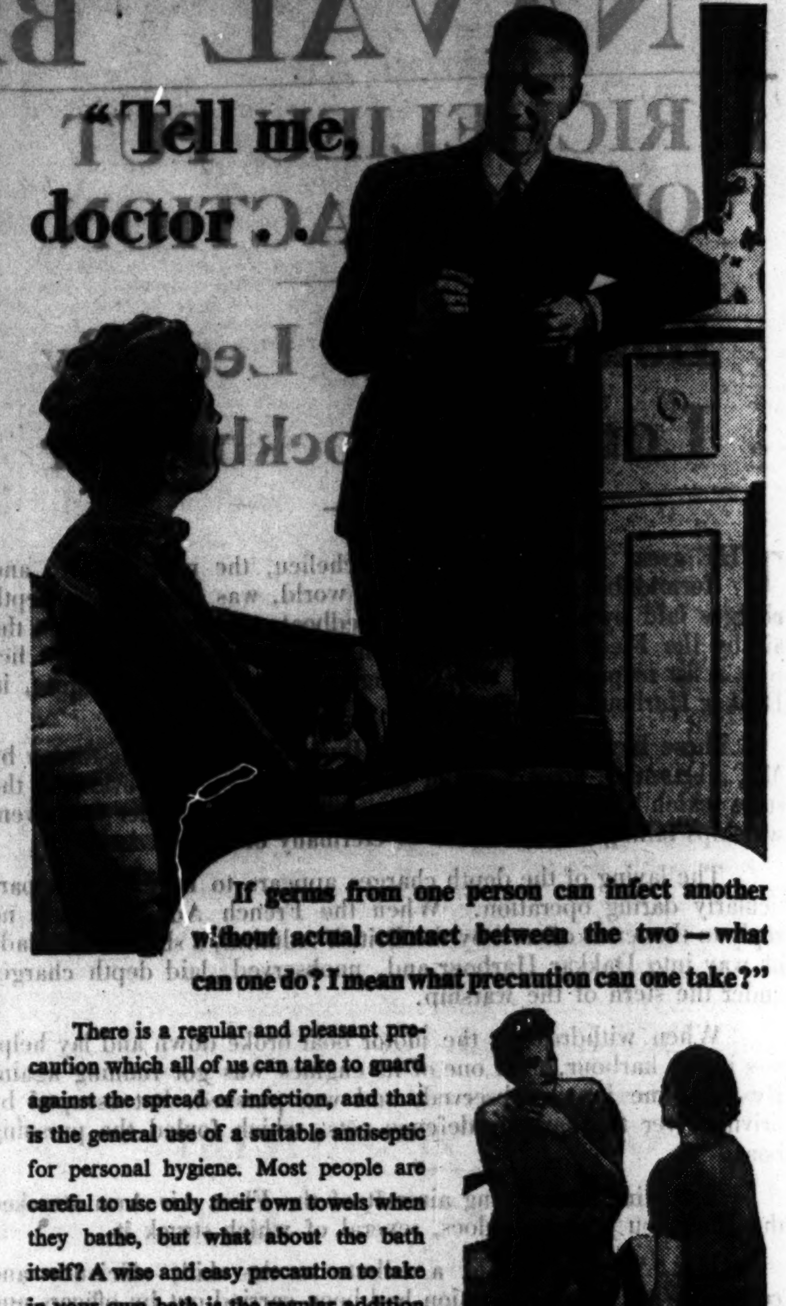
TRAMWAY RAILS FOR G.S.R.

About ten miles of the elevated tramway rails that were laid less than ten years ago between the City and Lucan have been acquired, through the Hammond Metal Company, by the Great Southern Railways Company to replace tracks that require renewal, and for which the necessary materials are now unprocurable owing to the drastic restrictions of steel supplies.

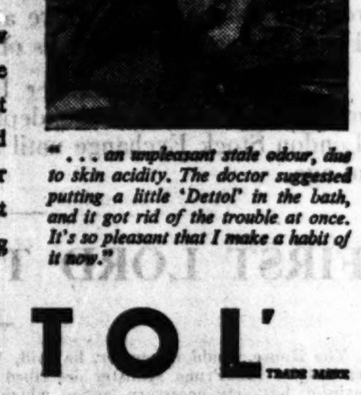
The removal of the rails has already begun, and it is expected that immediate steps to restore the original roadway will at once be taken by the County Council under its agreement with the D.U.T. Company.



If germs from one person can infect another without actual contact between the two—what can one do? I mean what precaution can one take?"

There is a regular and pleasant precaution which all of us can take to guard against the spread of infection, and that is the general use of a suitable antiseptic for personal hygiene. Most people are careful to use only their own towels when they bathe, but what about the bath itself? A wise and easy precaution to take in your own bath is the regular addition of some 'Dettol'.

'Dettol' is the modern antiseptic now widely used in our great hospitals—the latest weapon of medical science against the menace of germ infection. It should be applied at once to the smallest cut or scratch. Added to the bath it is a most refreshing way of ensuring personal hygiene.



"... an unpleasant stale odour, due to skin acidity. The doctor suggested putting a little 'Dettol' in the bath, and it got rid of the trouble at once. It's so pleasant that I make a habit of it now."

KRUSCHEN QUIZ

1. How many kinds of laxatives are there?

Four main kinds: Vegetable, mineral, oil and chemical.

2. Which is best?

It depends on your condition. For general health, most doctors recommend minerals.

3. Why?

Because a properly balanced mineral salt affects not only the colon but the kidneys as well. Kruschen's remarkable effect is due to this fact. Kruschen contains a blend of 6 mineral salts.

4. What's the proper dose?

The big, old-fashioned, high-explosive dose of salts, or in fact any laxative with a drastic action, is dangerous—all doctors agree. The modern dose is a small dose—and the pinch of Kruschen in your cup of tea each morning acts safely by keeping the waste matter in your intestines moist and moving. A pinch is just enough to cover a sixpence.

5. Is Kruschen expensive?

On the contrary, it's very economical. A 1/9 bottle lasts 3 months.

CALL TO NORTHERN FARMERS

FURTHER TILLAGE ORDER

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Tuesday.

Addressing the Council of the Ulster Farmers' Union in Belfast to-day, the Minister of Agriculture (Sir Basil Brooke, Bart.) declared that any farmer who failed to do his duty was just as much a traitor to his country as the soldier who fell asleep at his post. He thanked the Northern farmers for their magnificent response to the Tillage Order.

The amount of old grassland in Ulster ploughed up under the subsidy scheme was greater than in the whole of Scotland.

"While I am proud of the response you made to the ploughing-up campaign, I am not so pleased with the result of my appeal to you to grow more barley," he proceeded. "That appeal was made to you because you cannot possibly hope to maintain your present stock of pigs unless you grow more feeding for them, and barley, as a complete substitute for maize in pig feeding, you can and must grow if you are to maintain your income.

"There will be, as you all expect, a further Tillage Order requiring farmers to break up in the coming year an additional one-tenth of their arable land at present under grass."

Georgina Thomas, aged eleven, and John Thomas, aged nine, two evacuee children from Dover, were yesterday killed instantly by an express train at Undy Magor level-crossing, four miles from Newport (Mon.).

EVACUATION OF SIRES

Distinguished Stallions Moved From Newmarket

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Tuesday Night.

A LARGE-SCALE evacuation of valuable sires that have been standing at Newmarket is in progress, and it is understood that the future home of the Aga Khan's Derby winners, Bahram and Mahmoud, is to be Ireland. This will be the first time, if I remember rightly, that His Highness has ever had a stallion at Sheshoon. Bahram and Mahmoud have been standing at the Egerton House Stud at fees of, respectively, 500 guineas and 300 guineas. There have been more high-class sires standing at Newmarket than in any other similar area in the Kingdom.

Home of Nearco

These include the Italian horse, Nearco, a famous winner of the Grand Prix, for whom Mr. M. H. Benson gave £60,000, and stood in the next box to Windsor Lad before the latter was moved to Winchester. Lord Derby has had Fairway and Hyperion at one or other of his Newmarket studs, in addition to Sansovino, Bosworth and Bobsleigh.

Another Italian horse standing at Newmarket is Mr. Edward Esmond's Donatello II., who was beaten inches in the Grand Prix. He has been covering at the Brickfields Stud along with Foxhunter, the Ascot Gold Cup winner, who was returned from France last autumn—very fortunately for his owner as it has turned out. Lieut.-Cdr. Peter Beatty's Bois Roussel is another Derby winner that has been covering at Newmarket this season.

Mr. J. V. Rank some time ago acquired the New England Stud at Newmarket, where he established his St. Leger winner, Scottish Union, as well as Epigram, His Grace and Michoumy. These are being sent to a stud in the West Midlands. Still another Derby winner at Newmarket is Mid-Day Sun, who has been covering at the Wyck Hall Stud under the management of R. Day, who, of course, still has the now rather elderly Solario under his care.

Irish Derby Winners

Among other sires with racing or stud distinction at Newmarket are Le Ksar, winner of the 2,000 Guineas; Lord Glanely's three classic winners—Colombo, Singapore and Chulmleigh; Flamingo, winner of the 2,000 Guineas; Museum, a winner of the Irish 2,000 Guineas, Derby and St. Leger; the three distinguished horses, Precipitation, winner of the Ascot Gold Cup, Royal Minstrel and Loaningdale; Raeburn, a winner of the Irish Derby; Trimdon, a winner of the Ascot Gold Cup; the best handicap horse of his year, Wychwood Abbot; Bold Archer, Gold Bridge and Miss Paget's Wyndham.

In the area between Newmarket and the east coast the Aga Khan has two horses, Dastur, winner of the Irish Derby, and Umidwar; while Sir Victor Sassoon has the Grand Prix winner, Mieuxce, in Norfolk, along with Phidias, winner of the Irish 2,000 Guineas and Derby. These are located at Thetford, where Mr. A. K. Macomber has Brumeux. There is one bright spot in this Newmarket situation, and that is that evacuation was not considered necessary before the close of the covering season.

ANGLING

WATERVILLE, CO. KERRY

A change in weather conditions and a much-needed rainfall made a great improvement in the sport last week. After the prolonged dry spell the local rivers are still low and unfished, save the Waterville River, where a salmon and some nice sea trout were caught. The number of rods out is still very small, and the prospect of any improvement in this respect is remote.

GOLF

G.U.I. PRIZES AT THE CASTLE

W. KINSELLA FINISHES AT TOP OF LIST

The conditions at the Castle yesterday for the second of the Golfing Union of Ireland's tournaments for members of the Southern Branch, I.P.G.A., completely ruled out good scoring, despite the excellent order in which the course was. The bogey is 74, but only one had a return of 70, which was William Kinsella's morning round. As a matter of fact, he and J. Kelly, of Mullingar (73), alone beat the "colonel," but only those who were out on the course could realise how extremely difficult it was even for the strongest of the players to get good figures.

Some of the professionals may cavil at these tournaments being played on handicap. In the old days our paid players, jealous of their standing in the game, competed on level terms. The handicapping system was, however, introduced by Sir Stanley Cochrane for the monthly competitions he sponsored, and it worked out satisfactorily, inasmuch as everyone had a chance of getting into the prize money, which from scratch they would have been deprived of. There is presently such a wide disparity in the standard of Irish professional golf that if the G.U.I. had not played these competitions on handicap the "plus men" would have had it all their own way, and thus the object of the Union in presenting the prize money for the benefit of the professionals generally would not have materialised. It may be difficult for the better-known competitors to concede up to six strokes to others over 36 holes, but yesterday "Bill" Kinsella, of Skerries, succeeded in giving four, and Pat O'Connor and J. Carroll, of Galway, although conceding four and two respectively, finished well up in the list.

Kinsella's morning round of 70 was an excellent one. It was difficult to control the ball, but he did so with admirable skill and precision. He lost a stroke at the 4th, taking 5; but that was his one lapse on the holes out; another was his 4 at the short 15th; but against these slips he had 3's at the 10th and 14th. His card read—Holes out—4 4 3 5 4 4 3 4 3 (36); holes in—3 4 4 3 3 4 5 4 4 (34). He followed that fine round with a second of 74, which left him the winner by one stroke.

It was not out of his turn that Tom Shannon, of Milltown, got into the prize-money. Not for a very long time has he played as steadily for his rounds of 79 and 78, which placed him for the second prize. Young Kane also did splendidly, and steadiness and consistency brought Pat O'Connor two rounds of 74 for the prize for the best gross.

THE JOHN LUMSDEN MEMORIAL CUP

T. D. PURCELL STAGES EXCELLENT RECOVERY

J. Lyons (Kilkenny) and T. D. Purcell (Killiney) qualified for the Lumsden Cup final, which will be decided over 36 holes at the Grange on Saturday, commencing at 2 o'c. and 5.30. They respectively defeated K. P. Connell (Newlands) and M. O'Brien (Milltown) in the semi-finals last evening. In both matches the margin was 2 and 1.

O'Brien started by holing chips at the first and third for two 3's and getting down a putt of five yards at the second for a 2. After six holes he was 3 up, but he lost the next two to 4-3, and turned only 1 up. Purcell squared by holing from eight yards for a 2 at the eleventh, and after a series of halves he took the lead for the first time at the sixteenth, where he was in receipt of his second stroke. O'Brien went all out for a 4 at the next, and slipping a yard past the flag he missed the return and lost the hole to a 5. Purcell was approximately two under 4's.

The golf in the other semi-final was not up to the same standard, as Lyons was approximately four over 4's for the seventeen holes. He was out of bounds over the third green, and he had three putts at the fourth (receiving a stroke). Still, he turned 2 up. O'Connell got a hole back at the thirteenth, but lost the fourteenth to a 4. Three halves followed, and the provincial player qualified for the final.

SEMI-FINALS.

J. Lyons (Kilkenny) (6) beat K. P. O'Connell (Newlands) (5)—2 and 1.

T. D. Purcell (Killiney) (4) beat M. J. O'Brien (Milltown) (1)—2 and 1.

BIG FIELDS AT PHŒNIX PARK

BALLYMUN FANCIED FOR BLAKE PLATE

Portora May Win Free Selling Plate: First Race at 6.30

RACING at Phœnix Park this evening starts at 6.30, and will conclude at 8.35. There will be big fields for all the events, and no less than twenty-one runners will face the starter for the Free Selling Plate, a new race which has at once proved popular with owners.

For the Blake Plate, the chief race, Fair Ina will not be a runner, and her absence gives the event a more open appearance. Portora and Ballymun are the only previous winners, but the former may be saddled instead for the Free Selling Plate, in which case Ballymun may be best to stand. Miss D. Paget, who had a string of horses entered, depends solely on Desert Corps, who will be making a first appearance, and may be the chief danger to BALLYMUN.

Picking the winner of the Free Selling Plate is not an easy task, and those with the best credentials are Portora, Suzie, Brighter Home and Lops Apron. Of these Portora has shown the most consistent running, and is named as the likely winner.

The Sprint Handicap at the end of the evening is likely to provide the usual close finish. Dead Level may make amends for some recent failures, and win. Selections:—

Free Selling Plate—Portora; if absent, Suzie.
Hatchet Plate—Gransden.
Blake Plate—Ballymun.
Harcourt Plate—The Gripper.
Herbertstown Plate—Evening Dress.

GAELIC GAMES

BIG MATCHES AT THE WEEK-END

WATERFORD HURLERS READY FOR LIMERICK

(BY PAT'O.)

Dublin footballers gave Meath a harder game than the final score represents. Until that shock goal by McDermotts near the end, with all Meath's forwards crowding in on McLoughlin and Dowling, it was anyone's game. Meath are still the dour, stolid championship battlers. With Red Donnelly back, and a change or two in attack, Meath will defend their title gallantly against the Leix-Offaly winners.

Cork hurlers were never in danger at Limerick despite Clare's impetuous opening. When the Leemen settled down their hurling was thoughtful and constructive. Every ball was truly hit, and the Southern champions were masters in every section outside "midfield," where O'Halloran and Mullane held the Cork pair, Barrett and Buckley. Cork missed their most versatile hurler, John Quirke, of Blackrock, whose injured hand may be set for the Munster final against the Limerick-Waterford winners.

There are crowded days in front for Gaelic followers. Late July, August and September are packed with vital games in all four provinces. Should draws not interfere, provincial finals will wind up in July, inter-provincial fixtures fill August, and pave the way for the heavy All-Ireland programmes in September.

Next Sunday, at Athy, Laoighis and Offaly meet for the right to challenge Meath for the Leinster title. Offaly sprung a big surprise against Kildare in the second round. They never allowed Kildare's passing schemes to develop, and Joe O'Connor, the Sean McDermotts' star, took a big part in this victory. Offaly are a springing side, though I think Laoighis will have the measure.

TASK FOR CAVAN

Ulster football fans have a full programme next week-end. Cavan romped home from a weak Antrim side in their replay, but meet stronger opposition at Bundoran, where Donegal are at home. Cavan find Donegal a hard team to beat, but on recent form the Breffni men should again reach the Northern final. Buoyed up by a surprise victory over Tyrone, Down travel to Castleblayney to meet Monaghan. In a season of surprises, Monaghan are by no means safe, but on their favourite pitch, I fancy, their experience will pull them through.

As the weeks advance, Waterford hurlers grow more confident of lowering Limerick's colours. At Killarney the Deiseacht men were unlucky, though Limerick had made indifferent preparation. The Shannon men have reconstructed their team, and have made room for young hurlers like Cooke, Chalke, Stokes and Herbert—all promoted minors of a recent date. The Clonmel ground always suits Waterford, who are almost on home territory. Limerick's best teams have found Waterford difficult, and good judges consider next Sunday's game at Suirside an even-money chance.

Dublin senior hurlers are in strict training at Croke Park, and they will be at their best by July 21st for the big test with Kilkenny at Nowlan Park. So strong is this latest Faugh's selection that Kilkenny are not secure even on their home pitch. Dublin's midfield pair, Gray and Wade, are the best in the country. Should the Dublin forwards use their openings well the champions' title is in jeopardy. Kilkenny rarely shine in leagues or tournaments. By Sunday week they will be fully wound up to "final" form.

SCHOOL MATCH

At Waterford—Friends' School, Newtown 129 (M. Low 46, N. Lush 20; Allott 6 for 28); Mr. C. M. Hill's XI. 177 (W. E. Haughton 89, C. M. Hill 43; M. Lush 4 for 86, R. Parker 5 for 68).

LAWN TENNIS

RAIN CURTAILS PLAY

KEMP'S GREAT FORM AT FITZWILLIAM

Rain, which fell almost throughout the afternoon, limited play in the Irish championships to a few matches in the singles on hard courts, when the weather cleared in the evening. C. A. Kemp, H. J. Ryan, B. J. Murphy and E. H. Porter reached the last eight of the men's event, and Miss E. Lombard went into the second round of the women's singles.

Much the closest of the four men's matches was that in which Porter beat W. E. Dawson. In a base-line struggle of long rallies, there was nothing between them, but Porter has got the ability to bring out a good shot on the vital points, and this stood to him in a close finish.

Kemp played brilliant tennis in defeating W. A. Manahan, of University College, for the loss of three games. Taking the ball early under difficult conditions—the court being slippery after the rain—he was extremely accurate, and kept such a good length that he was able to attack from start to finish. Manahan's back-hand brought him a number of winners, but he was always fighting a losing battle.

Another seeded player, H. J. Ryan, had his work cut out to beat K. Kerr in straight sets. The loser was very sound off the ground, but he was generally on the defensive, and Ryan could get sufficient pace to come through in straight sets. B. R. Towers fought well against Murphy after losing the first set to love. Results:—

MEN'S SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP—Third Round.

C. A. Kemp beat W. A. Manahan—6-1, 6-2.
H. J. Ryan beat K. Kerr—6-4, 6-3.
B. J. Murphy beat B. R. Towers—6-0, 6-4.
E. H. Porter beat W. E. Dawson—6-3, 3-6, 7-5.

WOMEN'S SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP—Second Round.

Miss Lombard beat Miss M. Sheehan—6-1, 6-0.

GREYHOUND RACING

KILMAINHAM LASS SCORES AGAIN

TOWER AT HOME GAINS EASY VICTORY

Kilmainham Lass continued her winning sequence by taking the Munster Plate last night at Harold's Cross Park. She had little to spare, however, as it was only by a neck that she held off a strong challenge by Judy Is Generous, who was baulked at an early opening. Tower At Home, favourable drawn, justified favouritism by an easy win in the Sprint Flat. Details:—

Eat without Pain
no more Acidity—no more Flatulence

Perhaps your stomach is still struggling with your last meal. You're gasping with wind round the heart and doubled up with indigestion. Why? Because your stomach is always too acid. It sours every mouthful you eat. It turns meat into leather.

You can stop these agonising attacks this very day by taking 'Milk of Magnesia' Tablets. They relieve acidity and sourness at once. No matter what you eat, it remains sweet and digestible.

Your stomach makes easy work of digesting it. No sour repeating, no heartburn, not a trace of flatulence, not a twinge of your old agony.

What about your next meal? Are you going to submit to torture when one or two 'Milk of Magnesia' Tablets will save you? Make that meal the test. Get a box of the Tablets now and have them in readiness. You'll be thankful you tried them.

Neat flat boxes for the pocket, 6d. and 1/-. Also family sizes, 2/- and 3/6 everywhere.
